SUFF BOMB THROWER GLORIES IN HER OWN SUCCESS AS FIREBUG

Mrs. Edith Rigby Makes Dramatic Confession to Starting Big Lever Fire and Exploding Bomb in Stock Exchange

DEAD EASY TO BLOW UP BUILDINGS, SHE SAYS

Lever Residence More Valuable as Beacon for King and Queen to See Suffering Women, She Declares

(By Associated Press.)

LIVERPOOL, July 10.—A dramatic confession of incendiarism was made by a well-known militant suffragette, Mrs. Edith Rigby, wife of a physician at Preston, to the magistrate sitting in the police court here today.

Mrs. Rigby declared it was she who last Tuesday burned down the country residence at Rivington, near Horwich, Lancashire, of Sir William H. Lever, causing damage estimated at $100,000.

She further confessed to being the perpetrator of the outrage at the Liverpool stock exchange on July 5, when a bomb exploded, but caused little damage.

Mrs. Rigby surrendered voluntarily to the police. When arraigned today she gloried in her achievements, saying she wanted Sir William H. Lever to consider whether his house was more valuable as a show place than as a beacon lighted for the king and the country to see women suffering an insupportable grievance. She told the magistrate:

"I lighted that beacon. I also placed the explosives in the Liverpool stock exchange to show how easy it is to procure them and to place them in public buildings. I might just as easily have blown up the Nelson monument."

She was remanded for further hearing.

Mrs. Edith Rigby has been a member of the Women's Social and Political union, the militant suffrage organization, for many years and has taken a great part in public movements to promote the welfare of women. She has been imprisoned five times in connection with the suffrage movement and was on several occasions released owing to the breakdown of her health after hunger strikes.

Mrs. Rigby said to the magistrate:

"I chose the Liverpool cotton exchange because the cotton industry has been built up largely by women's labor. The merchants are willing to get power and wealth out of the labor of women, while the women themselves are denied the vote and citizenship. This is the first knock at the door. Under the cat and mouse act one of the greatest women in the land is going to be done to death. If the government is going to kill that woman this is a warning."

Hunger and Thirst Strike Brings Release From Prison

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 10.—Miss Clara Elizabeth Giveen, who with Kitty Marion was sentenced on July 3 to three years' penal servitude for setting fire to the stands on Hurst Park race course, was released from prison today in a serious condition of health resulting from a "hunger and thirst strike."

MEXICANS SLAIN AS THEY CELEBRATE BIG VICTORY

Federal Guns Mow Down 300 Constitutionalists Swimming River

(By Associated Press.)

TUCSON, Ariz., July 10.—A belated communication from Guaymas in the hands of Mexican Consul Ainlee today says that 300 constitutionalists met death in an effort to swim across the bay when they were repulsed by a hidden Huerta force in their attempt to enter the California gulf port.

The message states that General Ojeda, after his retreat to the federal base, arranged an ambush to surprise the pursuing constitutionalists and that 800 federals fell upon the state troops who retreated in disorder, leaving many dead and wounded behind.

Obregon's men were celebrating what they believed to be the fall of Guaymas when the federals closed in upon them.

CHIEF TRACES VICE CONDITIONS TO MEN: PROMISES ARRESTS

Beavers Puts Police on Trail of Men Blamed By Girl Guests for Situation in Downtown Hotels

GIRL VICTIM BARES HOTEL CONDITIONS TO RECORDER

Judge Broyles Hears Sensational Expose of Vice Situation Said to Exist in Many Atlanta Rooming Houses

As the outcome of the dramatic confession made by Hattie Smith in the recorder's court Wednesday afternoon Chief Beavers announced Thursday morning that he will open a war against the men who, he asserts, are ruining girls.

Following the trial in court Wednesday the chief says that Hattie Smith gave him more details than came out in the testimony, detailed though it was. He says that he now has the names of several men whom the Smith girl says she had taken auto rides with. The chief says that he will take steps against these men.

In beginning his campaign, the chief makes the statement that he holds the men responsible for the life led by the wayward woman. Poor girls, without even the necessities of life, have no show against men who are always on the watch to prey upon the unarmed Beavers.

SMITH GIRL TELLS STORY.

Hattie Smith, the seventeen-year-old girl whose revelations to the police have been more or less of a sensation for several days, told her story Wednesday afternoon to Recorder Broyles.

It was a story of a pretty girl, an older woman, automobile joy rides, and registering at hotels under assumed names as the wife of various men, and when it was finished the recorder bound her over to the city court under bond of $100, together with Clyde Cox, the young man with her in a hotel room when the police arrested her.

The girl made a soda fount on James street the first scene of her story. She said she frequented the place. It was there, two weeks ago last Saturday, that she met Lena Barnhart, alias Lena Levison.

She said she was attracted by the woman's handsome appearance and her popularity with the men. She inquired the woman's name, presently a man friend invited her to take an automobile ride. She accepted, and at the curb she found the Barnhart woman sitting in the front seat of the machine.

They went out Pace's ferry road and returned at nightfall. The Barnhart woman suggested that they go to a rest room down town, and there the woman "tidied her up."

WENT TO HOTEL.

Then the woman suggested that they go to the Cumberland hotel, saying she would go first and let the girl come later "to avoid suspicion." She went as directed, going to the woman's room. She was told that her name had been put on the register as "Lucile Evans."

And according to her story she was thereafter on the go almost continually up to the time of her arrest. She named the Cumberland, the Brittain and the Childs hotels as places where she had stopped. She told her story frankly and with no apparent embarrassment.

The Barnhart woman did not deny being with the woman, but asserted she was acting out of sympathy for "a shabbily dressed, penniless girl who had nowhere to go." She said the girl's conduct "made her suspect she was crooked," but she tried to believe to the contrary and help her as best she could.

Recorder Broyles did not take much stock in the "sympathy" story.

"You are not fit to be a mother," said he. (The woman has a three-year-old child.) "You can't raise a child in the life you are leading. It will see a brighter day when installed in a charitable home. The best thing for you to do is to leave town."

The recorder then bound her over under bond of $500, and bound over Lige Murry, charged with being her accomplice, under bond of $100.

HOUSE VOTES FOR CREATION OF NEW COUNTY OF BARROW

First of New County Propositions Passed by Vote of 136 to 35 After Stiff Fight Put Up by Minority

HARDEMAN LED STIFF FIGHT FOR MINORITY

Wanted to Put Off New County Proposition for Year—Committee to Invite Address by Senator Smith Named

By the vote of 136 to 35, the house of representatives Thursday afternoon passed the bill creating the new county of Barrow. The ballot in favor of the proposition was well in excess of 123 votes, the necessary two-thirds required.

The new county of Barrow is to comprise corners of Jackson, Gwinnett and Walton counties being situated in such a position as to take from each of the three about an equal amount of acreage. Winder, the proposed county seat, is a thriving little town with a population of over 2,000 people.

Despite unfavorable reports from the rules committee on the house resolution of Mr. Pharr, of Gwinnett, asking that the committee on constitutional amendments be instructed not to report on new county matters at this session, and a resolution by Mr. Fullbright, of Burke, asking that the house defer consideration of all such propositions until the next session, owing to other more important matters, Mr. Hardeman, of Jefferson, began a fight against the constitutional amendment creating the county of Barrow.

The effort of Mr. Hardeman to postpone the vote until the next session followed a short speech by Speaker Pro Tem McMichael, of Marion, in favor of the creation of the new county. Mr. McMichael called attention to the long and unsuccessful fight that had been waged by Winder citizens for the creation of the county that would make their town the county seat and stressed particularly the fact that the people really deserved good treatment at the hands of the present general assembly.

The objections of Representative Hardeman were in accordance with the unfavorably reported resolution of Mr. Fullbright. This was a time, he said, when matters of grave importance should occupy the time of the house and no new popular vote could be taken on the creation of a new county until the next general election, one year from October, it would be just as easy to hear and vote on these propositions at the next session of the legislature.

The speaker declared that the new county bills would take too much time as to endanger action on legislation that is of far greater general importance to the people of Georgia than the creation of a new county that effects only a limited area. He was not fighting new county propositions, he said, but rather moved that the matter be left in abeyance until the next session.

The motion to postpone the vote was killed and an aye and nay ballot on the main question ordered immediately afterwards with the announced result.

The early part of the session was taken up with the first reading of some thirty bills, the passage of four local bills and one of a general nature affecting the withdrawal of foreign fire insurance companies from Georgia.

This general bill introduced by Mr. Wohlwender, of Muscogee and Mr. Cook of Chattahoochee provides that all foreign fire insurance companies withdrawing from the state shall render a statement of their assets, liabilities and financial status to the state insurance commissioner and fully reinsure all policies held by persons or corporations in the state prior to their withdrawal.

Shortly after the house convened, Speaker Burwell announced a committee to invite Senator Hoke Smith to address the house and senate in joint session at some time during his contemplated visit to Atlanta. The committee named is composed of Representatives Millen of Bibb, Adams of Hall and Slade of Muscogee, who will act in co-operation with a similar committee of two from the senate.

At 12:45 the house adjourned until 10 o'clock Friday morning.

WOMEN AS OFFICERS OF PROBATION INDORSED

Suffragists Praise Beavers, "Especially for Recommending Women Officers"

The Georgia Woman's Suffrage association, at the Thursday morning session of the state convention at the Temple of Labor adopted resolutions indorsing the stand taken by Chief Beavers for "good government and clean morals," and "especially his action in recommending the appointment of women probation officers for Atlanta." The resolution, introduced by Mrs. Margaret Thornton McWhorter, pledged the cooperation of the association in securing the appointment of women probation officers and pledged support of "any movement toward bettering civic conditions in Atlanta, which in turn means better civic conditions in the whole state."

The meeting of the convention proceeded without any interruption from the opposing Civic league. Mrs. Mary L. McLendon stated before the meeting that she anticipated no trouble whatever and was sure that everything would be amicably settled.

No important business was taken up at the morning session. Mrs. McLendon made a short talk; Mrs. Scott, of Kansas, was introduced and spoke interestingly of the conditions of woman suffrage in that state; Mrs. Susi Cunningham, president of the DeKalb County

U. S. Army Officer Blown From Seat, Catches in Rigging and Saves Self in 600-Foot Fall

(By Associated Press.)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 10.—Captain F. B. Hennessy, attached to the First United States aero squadron here, had a narrow escape from death in a falling biplane yesterday, according to information which came to light today. He had attained an altitude of about 800 feet over the ocean when a gust of wind tilted his machine and threw him out of his seat. His right foot became entangled in the wires which control the ailerons and the machine immediately began to sink. It had glided nearly 600 feet down, it is said, before Captain Hennessy succeeded in freeing his foot. The machine had kept an even keel and the officer managed to regain his seat and control of the plane. The machine was then within 200 fet of the water.

SENATE COMMITTEE TO FAVOR WEBB LAW BILL

Measure to Affect Liquor Shipments Being Drafted by Sub-Committee

That a bill which will make the Webb law against the importation of intoxicating liquors from wet to dry states effective in Georgia will be recommended to the legislature, was proven by the attitude of the temperance committee of the senate at its meetings Thursday morning.

The committee considered a bill introduced by Senator Hixon, which applies the Webb law to Georgia. The form of the bill did not exactly suit a few of the members and it was referred to a subcommittee, but the majority of the temperance committee appeared to be favorable to the general interest of the Hixon measure.

The subcommittee consists of Senators Hixon, Searcy and Elkins. They will either amend the Hixon measure or draw a new bill, reporting to the committee at its next meeting. The bill will then be offered to the senate without probability of further amendment.

The senate went into executive session and confirmed the appointment which were presented Wednesday by Governor Slaton. The appointments were made public Wednesday by the governor.

Among the bills reported favorably by senate committees was the bill introduced by Senators Searcy and Bush, making the reading of the Bible a part of the public school system of the state, and Senator Huie's bill to take Clayton county from the Sixth congressional district and put it into the Fifth district, of which Fulton county is a part.

Seven new bills were introduced Thursday morning. One introduced by Senator Stark provides for the rotation of superior court judges of the state by the North Carolina system.

Immediately following the adjournment of the senate the finance committee met. One bill was acted upon and it was decided to report it unfavorably to the senate. This is a measure introduced by Senator Smith, which advances the time at which the state tax collector may issue fi fas from December 20 to November 20.

The chairman of the senate education committee, Senator Foster, has announced that on July 17 his committee will grant a hearing to all who are concerned in the passage of the free kindergarten and compulsory education bills.

Boys Save Mother From Pond; Three Women Nearly Drowned

Sunday School Picnic Party at Center Hill See Policeman's Sons Act Part of Heroes

Three women were rescued from dorwning in almost the same spot in the same pond near Atlanta Wednesday. Two of them were rescued at once in the afternoon, and the third was rescued late in the evening. By a strange coincidence, a policeman's two sons, a detective's nephew, and the policeman himself asisted each other in the first rescue, the occasion being a picnic given by the policeman's wife, and a detective made the second rescue, the occasion being a birthday picnic given in honor of the detective's nephew.

As was remarked at police headquarters Thursday morning, it was "all in the family." Fortunately, no serious consequences are feared for any of the victims, though one of them was ill Thursday morning.

Mrs. J. C. Williamson, wife of a city policeman, led her class of the Tabernacle Baptist Sunday school to a picnic in Center Hill district Wednesday. Her husband and her son, J. C., Jr., were in the company. She and Miss Maud Stradley were wading with several other members of the class along the shallows of a pond formed by a creek in the picnic grounds, when they stepped over the side of a sharp ledge and fell into deep water. They had sunk twice, it is said, when J. C. Williamson, Jr., aged twelve, and Mina Williamson, aged thirteen, rushed to the rescue. Robert Ozburn, aged fourteen, of Savannah, a nephew and namesake of Detective Robert Ozburn, of Atlanta, summoned Mr. Williamson, who jumped into the water with his clothes on. Being hot and out of breath, he nearly drowned himself, but in a few moments all were on dry land, a doctor had been summoned, and the unconscious women were resuscitated. Miss Stradley suffered no ill effects, but Mrs. Williamson was ill at her home Thursday morning.

The third rescue happened about 11 o'clock Wednesday night, when a party of picknickers were on their way to the car line from an evening spent near the river. O. H. Starnes had tendered the picnic as a birthday celebration in honor of his son, O. H. Starnes, Jr.

As the revelers neared the same pond from which Mrs. Williamson and Miss Stradley had been rescued in the afternoon, Miss Marguerite Dunn, of 85 Park avenue, running along a stone wall, fell into the water. Detective J. N. Starnes, of the local police department, following the young people with a group of the married folk, heard her cry for help and ran to the rescue, jumping into the water and reaching her just in time. She had not lost consciousness, but was badly frightened. She was able to ride into the city and continue to her home on a trolley car.

NO FINGER PRINTS FOUND BY EXPERT ON PHAGAN ENVELOPE

Examination of Portion of Slain Girl's Pay Envelope Fails to Throw Any Light on the Murder Mystery

FLETCHER, AT FEDERAL PEN MAKES EXAMINATION

Fight for Release of Newt Lee on Habeas Corpus Resumed and Hearing Will Be Given Saturday Morning

That the murderer of Mary Phagan can never be identified by finger prints on the pay envelope found in the factory, and the "re-setting" of Newt Lee's habeas corpus for 10 o'clock Saturday morning, were two important developments of the sensational murder mystery Thursday.

Ascording to Attorney Bernard L. Chappell, of Graham & Chappell, counsel for the negro night watchman, fifty witnesses among them the negro James Conley, confessed accomplice, and Leo M. Frank, accused of the crime, will be subpenaed for the habeas corpus hearing.

It is known that the solicitor general, Hugh M. Dorsey, will oppose the release from the power of Lee on the ground that he is a material witness.

Counsel for Frank will take no part in the fight to secure the release of Lee, but Attorney Reuben R. Arnold stated when the case was postponed that he would oppose any effort to bring Frank into the court for the habeas corpus hearing.

It is sai dthat the counsel for Frank will oppose bringing him to the court on the ground that it is not lawful to force a defendant to give any testimony which relates to or bears on the crime for which he is to be tried.

This, as a result, will prevent the much talked of meeting of Frank and Conley.

According to the attorney for Lee, subpenae will be issued to the many detectives who have worked on the case, to the solicitor general and to the foreman of the grand jury that failed to indict Lee.

EXAMINED BY EXPERTS.

The part of a pay envelope, bearing across it the name of Mary Phagan, which was found in the pencil factory several weeks after she was murdered, is in the possession of Pinkerton detectives, who on Thursday took it to the federal prison in order that L. J. Fletcher, the government finger print expert, might examine it.

The paper was curled, as if some one had rolled it in his hands, when it was found in the factory, and has been carefully preserved and handled only when resting on another sheet of paper.

For that reason it was thought that a finger print might aid in identifying the girl's slayer.

Every known method of raising or developing finger prints on paper was used by the prison expert, however, without any trace of a finger print showing.

While it was thought Wednesday that both the state and the defense knew of the finding of the slip of paper, government officials denied Thursday that they had heard anything about the find until they read The Journal's exclusive story.

Attorneys for the defense, however, admitted that they have known for a week that the slip of paper was found in the factory.

WHAT PROSECUTION SAYS.

Prosecuting officials doubt that the part of a pay envelope found so long after the tragedy was really the envelope which Mary Phagan received at the factory on the day she met her death.

It could have been an old envelope (it bore no date), or some factory employee might have carelessly written the girl's name on a part of an envelope and dropped it on the floor long after the crime, they say.

JACK JOHNSON SAYS HE'LL NEVER COME BACK TO U. S.

Negro Pugilist, In France, Says He Will Live There From Now On

(By Associated Press.)

HAVRE, France, July 10.—Jack Johnson, the colored pugilist, arrived here today on board the Corinthian, and immediately on landing announced his determination never to return to the United States. He said he would in the future take up his residence in Paris.

Justice Department Doesn't Regret Loss of Johnson

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Jack Johnson's announcement that he would never return to the United States caused the department of justice immediately to consider steps to bring about the forfeiture of his $30,000 personal bond pending in Chicago for his appearance in connection with white slave indictments upon which he has not yet been tried.

Judge Carpenter, a few days ago, declined to declare the bond forfeited until it was clear that Johnson would not appear when wanted. The department of justice, it is said, probably will seek official confirmation of his announced purpose not to return and present the matter again to Judge Carpenter.

Government attorneys expressed no regret over the negro's announcement. A few days ago officials considered the advisability of asking Johnson to depart him upon arrival, but it was decided to let the case take its usual course. Their view was that there would not be objection to his absence from the country, and if he ever should return the imprisonment sentence always would be enforceable, provided the circuit court of appeals approved the verdict.

Jack Johnson may not find refuge in France, in the opinion of the state department officials. They say that while probably there is no provision in the extradition treaty with France under which the surrender could be demanded, the French authorities, even without a formal appeal from this government, may deport Johnson, as, like most European countries, France is understood to have laws prohibiting the immigration of a person convicted of crime in his own country.

Cairo Police Chief Can't Collect Street Taxes in Valdosta

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 9.—Diplomatic relations between Valdosta and the town of Cairo were jarred last evening when two policemen of this city arrested Chief of Police Horton, of Cairo, and threatened to put him in the city prison, where he had a prisoner confined.

Chief Horton had been to Hahira to get a prisoner and was on his way home, stopping over in Valdosta while in the streets, he ran upon a Cairo negro who had left that town without paying street taxes. Chief Horton arrested him and collected $4 tax which he was said to be due the town of Cairo. The negro reported to the Valdosta officers, stating that he pays street tax here. Policemen Simmons and Walker hunted up the Cairo officer and arrested him, causing him to give up the $4 which the negro had paid him. The negro then paid $2 of the money to Officer Walker, who collects street tax here.

When Chief Horton left Valdosta last night he did so with the understanding that he was going to sue out papers when he reached Cairo that will make the negro pay back the $4.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Cheney Will Fight Abolition Of Cobb County Commission.

Representative John P. Cheney, of Cobb, rises to remark that whoever it was that coupled him up with the movement to abolish the board of county commissioners in Cobb county has got the reverse English on the dope.

"As a matter of fact," said Representative Cheney, "I am vigorously and actively opposed to any such plan. Cobb is a progressive county and it has pushed forward and prospered under the board of commissioners. If any such abolishing bills introduced in the legislature I will do my utmost to send it to an early death."

Mr. Cheney's colleague, H. B. Moss, says he has not determined just what his attitude will be toward the proposed measure. "I promised the people of the rural district that I would do what I could to get some road work done for them, and I intend to keep my promise. I hope that this can be accomplished without abolishing the board of county commissioners."

Representative Picquet Cannot Make Laws Without Aid of His Eyeglasses.

It almost became necessary for the house of representatives to delay the hour of its meeting Tuesday. Representative C. A. Picquet, of Richmond county, arrived at the capitol a half hour before roll call and found that he had misplaced his eyeglasses.

Now Mr. Picquet cannot work without his glasses and his colleagues all knew that he could not do home work without Mr. Picquet. After Mr. Picquet had vainly rummaged through his pockets and his desk one member suggested that the best thing to do would be for the house to take an adjournment until the missing glasses could be found.

"I cannot take the responsibility for blocking legislation," replied the member from Richmond, "so I must insist that the house do the best it can without my assistance."

The perplexing situation was relieved when Mr. Picquet jumped into his automobile, drove rapidly downtown to an oculist and obtained a pair of glasses for temporary use. He got back to the capitol just as the house clerk had reached his name on the roll call.

Mr. Picquet was quite out of breath and puffing like a steam engine, but he was happy not to have missed a moment from duty and his colleagues were also very much relieved that he could be with them in the morning's deliberations.

Representative Berry Would Increase Pension of Veterans

A bill that is the subject of much comment, is that of Representative S. E. Berry, of Whitfield, introduced in the house Monday, which provides for an increase in the pension of Confederate veterans from $60 to $100 per annum, to be paid quarterly instead of yearly as has been the custom in the past.

Mr Berry in support of the measure, calls attention to the rapidly thinning ranks of the gray and to the fact that the earning capacity of these men is not what it has been. "There is no need to increase the appropriation," he said, "in order to raise individual pensions, since there are three fewer of the old soldiers to be cared for now and the difference of $40 more to each one annually would not go beyond what is now set aside for them."

Georgia's House of Representatives Working Like a Well-Oiled Machine.

The house of representatives is at work with an earnestness of purpose that presages real accomplishments for the good of the state and its people.

It is quite evident that the large majority of the members have come to Atlanta seriously determined to solve some of the state's important problems. There is no disposition on the part of a single member to fritter away any portion of the fifty-day session on frivolous matters.

The house got down to business from the very beginning, and guided by Speaker Burwell, it is working like a well-oiled machine. No time is being wasted on petty factional differences. The morning session is given over to the sessions of the house and each afternoon finds from two to a half dozen committees busily engaged in making up their reports and recommendations on matters referred to them.

The chairmen of the various committees seem to have caught the "working spirit" of the speaker and they are allowing no grass to grow under their feet. All important matters referred to committees are promptly acted upon and sent back to the house with favorable or adverse reports.

It is worthy of note that the house has stood by every committee report made this session.

Within the next few days the general and special appropriation bills will be up for debate. It is the purpose of the house to rapidly dispose of these bills and to pursue a policy of economy. The members are practically agreed that the time has come when the state must stop the practice of allowing its appropriations to exceed its revenues. This is taken to mean that few, if any, special appropriations will get by this year.

The men who compose the house membership this year are of an unusually high and representative class, and the state is justified in expecting beneficial legislation at their hands.

State Auditor Bill is Introduced by Representative Adams, of Hall.

A bill to create the office of state auditor was introduced in the house Tuesday by Representative J. O. Adams, of Hall. This bill embodies a suggestion which was contained in both the farewell message of Governor Brown and the inaugural address of Governor Slaton.

It is quite similar in all respects to the bill introduced last year by Representative Joe Hill Hall, of Bibb, but which failed to be enacted into law.

At each session of the legislature for the past several years a state auditor bill has been presented. Every one of these bills met strong opposition and were defeated. Mr. Adams thinks he has eliminated the objects heretofore urged against the creation of a stte auditor and he believes that his bill has a good chance to become a law.

Fermor Barrett, Lawyer, ex-Legislator, Barbecue Expert, Is "Missing Around."

One of the many Georgians who has come to Atlanta to "sorter size up" the general assembly is Fermor Barrett, of Toccoa, scholar, lawyer, ex-legislator and barbecue expert of north Georgia.

Mr. Barrett is personally acquainted with a large percentage of the members of both houses and he is rapidly getting acquainted with those heretofore unknown to him.

Incidentally Mr. Barrett is doing what he can to further the interests of one of the new county movements which is backed by some of his close friends.

Representative Shuptrine Wants A Drug Inspection Department.

A bill to raise the standard of the drug business in Georgia and to drive out those who illegally sell morphine, cocaine and similar drugs, has been introduced in the house by Representative Herman C. Shuptrine, of Chatham.

This bill provides for a state drug department to be in charge of a commissioner, who will employ a drug inspector and a special attorney to prosecute druggists who violate the law. It is intended that the expenses of maintaining such a department shall be met by a special professional tax on druggists and by drug inspection fees.

At present the drug inspector works under the direction of the commissioner of agriculture. It is believed by Mr. Shuptrine and others who advocate his measure that by the creation of a drug inspection department, such as is contemplated in the bill, any and all political influence will be eliminated and a better enforcement of the drug laws will result.

Attorney Bush, of Colquitt, Brings A Most Interesting Story to Atlanta.

B. B. Bush, of Colquitt, Miller county, one of the best known and most progressive young lawyers in south Georgia, is authority for the statement that there is a negro in his home town who is gradually but surely turning white. This negro, says Mr. Bush, up to a few months ago had a coal-black skin. Recently white splotches appeared on his face, followed by a whitening of the skin on his hands and feet. He is now about a third white and is apparently in perfect health, says Mr. Bush.

The phenomenon is explained only on the idea that the negro's skin is undergoing some unusual chemical change.

Mr. Bush is in Atlanta as one of the leaders of the new Griggs county movement, which he expects to be looked upon with favor by the legislature. He was very much pleased when the rural letter carriers, in their recent convention, adopted resolutions indorsing the Griggs county idea as a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Congressman James M. Griggs, to whom the letter carriers were very much attached.

Three-Cornered Congressional Race Seems Likely in Eleventh District.

If political rumors can be relied upon, there will be a most interesting three-cornered congressional race in the Eleventh district next year, when Congressman J. Randall Walker will, it is said, be opposed for re-election by State Senator W. L. Converse, who represents the Sixth senatorial district, and Judge J. W. Quincey, of Douglas, Coffee county.

It is known that Congressman Walker, who is serving his first term will be a candidate to succeed himself, Senator Converse declines to discuss his plans, but admits that he has been urged to make the race by many friends in the Eleventh district. Judge Quincey is said to be awaiting to see what Senator Converse will do, it being his intention to enter the the contest in the event the latter makes the race.

Both Congressman Walker and Senator Converse reside at Valdosta, where the former is a well-known lawyer and the latter a prominent business man. Senator Converse has served four years in the house as the representative of Lowndes county, and he has just entered upon his first term as senator from the Sixth district.

Judge Quincey is also very popular and is said to have a large following in the Eleventh district.

Editor Rainey is Makin Good As A Member of the State Prison Board.

Editor E. L. Rainey, of the Dawson News, who succeeded the late Captain Wiley Williams, of Columbus, on the state prison commission, is proving himself to be a most capable and conscientious official.

Mr. Rainey never misses a session of the commission, and he is rapidly acquainting himself with prison conditions in every county of the state. He recently inspected the convica camps and road work now in progress in Forsyth county. After Mr. Rainey's visit to Forsyth the Monroe Advertiser had the following to say:

"Although its newest member, Mr. Rainey gives evidence of becoming one of the most useful of the members of the commission. He has set about to afforallize himself with conditions in all parts of Georgia that he may therefore be able to exercise the duties of his office with a firsthand knowledge of local conditions in all parts of the state.

"Mr. Rainey spent only a short while in Forsyth but the new commissioner made an excellent and wholesole impression on all those with whom he came in contact."

JUDGE W. T. NEWMAN PAID COMPLIMENT BY JURORS

Traverse Jury Urges Him to Stay on Bench and Commends His Work

Resoltions complimenting Judge W. T. Newman highly and urging that he remain on the bench without availing himself of the privilege of retirement because of age, were adopted Thursday by the traverse jury of the United States court in Atlanta.

Here they are:

"We, the members of the traverse jury drawn for the March term of the district court for the northern district of Georgia, beg leave to submit the following:

"We have been so impressed by the absolute fairness, uniform courtesy and sound judgment of Hon. William T. Newman, judge of this court, in all of his charges and rulings, that we think it would be a calamity to the citizens of north Georgia for him to exercise the right given him under the law and retire from the bench on acount of age.

"We therefore earnestly request Judge Newman to continue as judge of this district as long as his physical condition will allow him to undertake its arduous duties.

"We sincerely hope that he may see the return of many Junes and continue his valuable service for many years."

Recently Judge Newman celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday by working quite as usual.

FARM STATION TO HOLD FEDERAL APPROPRIATION

Assurance of Government Aid Given When Directors Fix Fund's Use

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GRIFFIN, Ga., July 10.—The federal government will not withdraw its annual appropriation of $30,000 for the Georgia Experiment Station.

This information was given the board of directors of the station yesterday at their regular quarterly meeting by Government Inspector E. W. Allen, who was present at the request of State Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price.

Dr. R. H. J. DeLoach, the newly-elected director, made a short address at the meeting, in which he stated that the station would be thoroughly reorganized and in the future would be run on a strictly scientific basis. He said that the funds appropriated by the government would be used only and exclusively for the specific purposes for which they were made, and expressed himself as being very optimistic over the outlook for the station.

After Director DeLoach's remarks Dr. Allen made some recommendations as to how the federal funds should be used. He said that in the past too much of he work of the station had been of an agricultural nature and not enough attention given to scientific research work. He said the government had contemplated holding up the annual appropriation on this account, but after the assurance of Director DeLoach, who has the hearty co-operation of the entire staff, that the recommendations would be complied with, said in his report to the government he would recommend a continuance of the appropriation.

The directors appointed a committee, with Hon. J. J. Flynt as chairman, to appear before the state legislature and ask for an appropriation of $7,500 for the purpose of making improvements that are needed upon the station.

J. W. McWhorter, of Oconee county, was elected a member of the board of directors to succeed Hon. J. D. Price, now commissioner of agriculture.

Perry Van Ewing, of Kansas, was elected animal husbandman to succeed H. P. Lykes, who goes with the Southern railway's industrial department.

GARRISON TO INSPECT FORT M'PHERSON POST

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Secretary Garrison will start Wdnesday on a tour of inspection of army posts in the United States. He intends to visit every garrison except at coast defenses and gather firsthand information for his plan to concentrate the army at important centers less remote from transportation facilities than some of the present points.

Secretary Garrison will be accompanied by Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff, and Major General James H. Aleshire, chief of the quartermaster corps.

It is said that Secretary Garrison realizes what determined opposition has been presented to previous attempts to concentrate the army in advantageous, strategic locations, irrespective of topographical divisions, but he has declared his purpose to proceed with his plans.

CATALOGUES AND ANSWER BOOKS NEARLY EXHAUSTED

By the time this paper reaches you there will not be enough Answer Books and Catalogues left to worry about. At this time it looks as if one day will clean out the Catalogue, so early in the campaign that we may possibly have a few Answer Books left. As we have given fair warning that we were likely to run short of supplies, the only one to blame will be yourself if you are not able to buy an Answer Book and Catalogue when you come for them. We have a few more Answer Books than Catalogues and they may last a day longer than the Catalogues. It will be first come, first served from now on and positively no more Catalogues or Answer Books when present supply is exhausted.

We made every effort to obtain a sufficient supply for this Campaign, but the windup has come so far ahead of anything we expected that we know we will run short and cannot get a new supply in time to do any good in this Campaign. If you have not secured your Answer Book come in or send your order today if you want to be sure of getting one. If you want a Catalogue it will all depend how early you get in for it.

We will have plenty of pictures for everybody and can supply them up to the closing hour of sales on Saturday.

To accommodate our friends we will keep open until 10:00 p. m., July 12th. But if you want an Answer Book come in or send in today!

AMUSEMENTS SHOULD BE REGULATED, SAYS CAREY

Park Manager Thinks, However, That It Should Be Done by the Park Authorities

Dan Carey, general manager of the parks of Atlanta, has written a very interesting interview on the subject of regulating the public amusements, apropos of the ordinance introduced in council last Monday to prohibit short skirts and tights by women and risque jokes by comedians in the vaudeville programs of the motion picture theaters.

Manager Carey contends that motion picture theaters, dance halls and pool rooms should be regulated, and that the proper authorities to regulate them are the recreation authorities of the city—in other words, the park authorities.

WHAT HE SAYS.

His interview follows:

"The ordinance introduced during the session of council last Monday which seeks to regulate the character of the performance in moving picture shows seemingly has created considerable excitement, but I think that sober reflection should cause us to pause a while before condemning this new legislation. In other words, I think it a fit subject for thought. I, of course, had nothing to do with preparing the ordinance, and did not know it was going to be presented, but I do know it is a good thing, i. e. regulation is a good thing.

"The trouble with the moving picture situation in Atlanta, it seems to me, is that the general council, in undertaking to regulate performances of this kind some time ago, unfortunately failed to take cognizance of the fact that moving pictures are distinctly public recreation and should be looked after by the recreation department. The library board, which has charge of moving picture shows, is composed of splendid gentlemen, but I believe they have not given an undue amount of thought to the subject of recreation. This mistake was natural in view of the cumbersome government under which we are operating. The remedy will never be reached until each department of the government is given its work to do.

"As a further illustration of this same thing, the dance halls of the city, which are essentially a part of the recreation of the people, are regulated by the police committee of council, and the members of the police committee, I am confident, have never made a study of recreation. The same thing is true of the pool rooms, and an investigation would doubtless show that there are other phases of our recreational life which are either not being regulated at all, or are being regulated by departments which look after them from the wrong viewpoint.

THE MOTION PICTURES.

"Let us take up the motion pictures first. There are several distinct dangers in moving picture shows. The first is physical, by which I mean the danger of fire; the danger to public health on account of the lack of proper ventilation; the danger to eyesight because of imperfect apparatus; the danger from lack of proper cleaning.

"The second danger is moral, which comes from the character of the pictures of the performance. This is ably regulated by the national board of censorship, but not entirely so.

"There is also the danger of placing the seats too close together, and almost any young lady who has frequented moving picture shows can tell of frequent annoyance on account of the seats being crowded so close together that men of evil tendencies make nuisances of themselves. In this connection of morals, there is also the danger of allowing moving picture shows to become places where young people congregate too frequently. There is the danger of making them meeting places which ought to be looked after by the department in charge of this branch of public recreation.

"The third danger is largely the failure on the part of the moving pictures to take advantage of the unusual opportunity that they present for improving the public morals and the public mind without in the least lessening the pleasure of the performance.

"I do not wish to become trite, but what I mean is that recreation is either good and wholesome, or bad and unwholesome, and the moving picture show which fails to do its duty in the way of improving and advancing and uplifting ought to be made to do so. This is a mere outline of what can be done with moving picture shows.

THE DANCE HALL.

"The dance halls of Atlanta have never been regulated except in inquiring into the character of the men who operate them and by occasional police supervision, but the police are not educated to think along the lines of wholesome public recreation. It would be natural to suppose that dance halls would be closed upon the complaint of property owners, but it must be borne in mind that these dance halls are in the center of town and operated at night when adjoining property owners are at home and asleep. I do not know whether they are menaces here because I have never seen them, but I do know they are menaces in other cities where they have been investigated and certainly it would not be amiss to regulate them here.

THE POOL ROOMS.

"The pool room situation is known to almost every one and we all know that pool rooms enter very largely into the recreation of the people. Some of them are very, very bad and they are not beginning to do the part of duty in the way of wholesome recreation.

"Now do not understand me as being opposed to moving picture shows, dance halls or pool rooms. They are all splendid things when properly regulated and can be made places of wholesome and excellent amusement for the people without interfering with the profits of their managers, but to further neglect them is to do an injustice to the young people in this growing city.

"I did not mean to talk at such great length, but I am so deeply interested in this matter of public recreation and I regretted so much the tone of levity that accompanied the ordinance introduced in council last Monday that I could not refrain from entering into the discussion."

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO HEED SLATON'S ADVICE

Members Decide to Keep School and Pension Funds Well Within Limit

Members of the house committee on appropriations Thursday prepared to heed Governor Slaton's advice to hold school and pension appropriations well within the limit. In address to the committee members at the Capital City club Wednesday night the governor declared that these two items should be watched most carefully.

While announcing that he expected to make no fight on the appropriations made for school and pension purposes Governor Slaton intimated clearly that there was a decided tendency to become reckless where these funds were concerned.

The club dinner tendered the members of the house committee by Chairman Crawford Wheatley, proved a success. The entire absence of factionalism was noticeable. Representative Wheatley, acting as toastmaster, urged conservatism in the matter of appropriations and pledged his best efforts to the state.

L. R. Akin, chairman of the ways and means committee, and William H. Burwell, speaker of the house, were present and both pointed out the importance of solving the state's financial difficulties. Mr. Akin was applauded when he declared that his committee was doing all in its power to make it possible for the state to secure an income sufficient to cover every appropriation.

Other speakers were Judge Griffin of Lowndes; John Y. Smith, of Fulton; Samuel L. Olive, of Richmond, and Fred Lewis.

"$1 a Man" Campaign Closes

The closing meeting of the "$1 a man" campaign, which the colored branch of the Y. M. C. A. has been waging to secure funds for the erection of a new building, will be held at Big Bethel A. M. E. church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when it is expected to reach the large number of persons who have not yet contributed to the fund. The meeting will be enlivened by the presence of the following able speakers: Phillip Weltner, C. M. Manning, W. Woods White and C. M. Tanner.

FAVORABLE REPORT FOR BOOK PROBE IS CERTAIN

House Committee to Make M. L. Brittain One of Investigators

A favorable report upon the McCrory resolution authorizing a commission to investigate the prices of school books in Georgia seemed to be indicated by the discussion among members of the house committee on education, in their meeting at the capitol before the session of the house, Thursday morning. The resolution was before the committee then for the first time.

A further reasonable surmise appeared to be that the resolution will be amended in committee so as to include not only State Superintendent of Schools M. L. Brittain, but also some of the other educational authorities of the state.

The committee had agreed upon an amendment to include Mr. Brittain in the membership, and was about to report the resolution back to the house with the recommendation that it do pass in that form, when Representative McMichael of Marion suggested the further amendment. The commission should include also, said he, some of the leading men in educational affairs in Georgia, so that it could deliberate upon not only the mechanical construction and mathematical cost of books, but their educational value also.

Representative McCrory, author of the resolution, objected to that amendment. It would not be wise, said he, to include any investigators interested in the purchasing of books.

The committee adjourned at that juncture to meet again at 8 o'clock Friday morning and conclude the matter after further deliberation in the meantime.

Representative James is chairman of the committee, and Representative Ransom is vice chairman. The other members are Representatives Adams of Pike, Anderson of Murray, Arnold of Henry, Beck, Clementa, Dodd, Evans, Mc-Dants, McCrory, McMichael, Meadows of Wayne, Mills, Neal, Nevil, Wall and Reese of Thomas.

COTTON MEN OPPOSED TO FUTURE CONTRACT TAX

Chamber of Commerce Directors Stamp Approval on Cotton Committee's Protest

Approval was given Wednesday by the directors of the chamber of commerce to the protest of the cotton committee of the chamber against the proposal in the United States senate to tax cotton future contracts 50 cents a bale.

The committee contends that futures are used legitimately as hedges against purchases of spot cotton. The tax, the committee contends, would tend to reduce the price of cotton.

It also contends that all the cotton exchanges in the country would have to go out of business and the trader would have to depend on Liverpool.

The proposed tax is contained in an amendment to the tariff bill known as the Clark rider. Letters of protest have been written to the Georgia senators and Representative Howard, of this district.

Olympic Athlete and Two Brothers Plan For Triple Wedding

A triple wedding, in which Ben Adams, a winner in the Olympic games and a resident of Atlanta, will be one of the grooms, is being planned for next fall in New York City.

Mr. Adams, with his two brothers, Platt and William, will be married on the same day, Ben and William to two Newark, N. J., girls, and Platt to a young lady from Chicago.

Ben Adams has been here since last fall, when he became identified with the local office of A. G. Spalding Bros., the sporting goods firm. He and Platt entered the jumps in the Olympic games and carried off several honors.

"Sure we are going to get married," he announced Thursday morning. "If our plans turn out as expected, the triple wedding will occur some time in September in New York City. All of us boys claim that town as our home.

I am going to marry Miss Marjorie Porter, of Newark; Platt will marry Miss Julie Hubard, of Chicago, and William R. is engaged to another Newark girl, Miss Mabel Sauer."

INTERURBAN LINE FROM ANDERSON IS DISCUSSED

The directors of the Atlanta chamber of commerce have taken up the matter of a proposed interurban line between Atlanta and Anderson, S. C., with a committee of two from the Anderson chamber of commerce, composed of T. Frank Watkins and M. M. Mattison. The approximate distance between the two cities is 120 miles, and after going over the matter with the visiting committee, the Atlanta board signified that there was a possibility of some action being taken at once.

BAR ASKS ADDITIONAL SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE

Atlanta Association Unanimously Urges Creation of Fourth Jurist's Place

By a resolution passed unanimously at a meeting Thursday morning the Atlanta Bar association urges the creation of a fourth judge of the superior court in the Atlanta or Fulton county circuit.

Fifteen members of the bar have been named by President Reuben R. Arnold to "lobby" among the legislators for the measure, and a determined fight to have the legislature create the office will be waged by the local lawyers.

The resolution adopted urges that the language of the act creating the third court in the circuit, that presided over now by Judge George L. Bell, be followed in the act to provide a fourth judge for the circuit.

Should the legislature pass this bill, which is to be introduced by Representative John Y. Smith, it will have the effect of relieving the judge of the Stone Mountain circuit from his duties in the Atlanta circuit. Judge L. S. Roan, judge of the Stone Mountain circuit, presides over the criminal division of the superior court in the Atlanta circuit by special act of the legislature.

Judge Roan recently moved his residence from Fairburn to Atlanta, and it is extremely probable that the new court is created he will be named to preside over it, although there will be several candidates in the field.

It is the idea of some members of the Bar association that after the proposed court is created that the four judges will handle the criminal business of the county in rotation.

It is said, however, that no definite action in this direction has been taken, and it is also possible that the fourth judge will preside exclusively over the criminal court. The four judges will have the same power and jurisdiction, and the matter will be one for them to decide.

The resolution urging that the Fulton delegation introduce a bill to create a fourth court was introduced at the bar meeting by Edgar Watkins, and the following attorneys were named as a committee to urge the passage of the measure among members of the house and senate: Judge Arthur G. Powell, John W. Moore, Edgar Watkins, Frank L. Neufville, Burton Smith, Luther Z. Rosser, John L. Tye, Jack J. Hastings, D. W. Rountree, George Westmoreland, E. C. Hill, Thomas Wright, Van Astor Batchelor, Philip Alston and J. H. Porter.

BEAVERS TELLS COPS TO WATCH EACH OTHER

One Officer Should Not Hesitate to Report Another, He Says in Address to Force

Chief Beavers talked for fifteen minutes to the members of the day watch just before they went on duty Thursday morning in regard to the charges of drinking which caused the dismissal of three policemen from the force.

He told them that he was satisfied that there were now no more men on the force guilty of such conduct and that all of the men in the department were above actions of this sort, but that if any more evidence of misconduct was brought to him he would probe the matter as deeply as he had done in the past.

There has been some criticism, the chief said, of the methods used in having one officer report wrong-doing on the part of another. He characterized such criticism as false, and said that it was always the duty of one officer to report another's dereliction. A policeman should be arrested for going into a disorderly house for a wrong purpose just as any other citizen should, said the chief.

In a way, he declared, the wrong-doing of one man reflected on the whole department, but it was unjust for the public to declare that because one policeman was guilty of a vicious action that all were vicious men. He compared the officers to men in other walks of life, declaring that the public did not say that all bank clerks were bad if one happened to be an embezzler.

The chief will repeat his talk to the members of the morning and evening watch.

STATE HOME FOR WAYWARD GIRLS IS RECOMMENDED

House Bill, Carrying $75,000, Will Go in With Committee's Approval

Despite an attempt to have the bill of Representatives Mills, of Butts, and Jones, of Coweta, providing for an industrial home for wayward girls and carrying with it an appropriation of $75,000, recommitted to the appropriations committee, it was kept by the penitentiary committee Wednesday afternoon, and will go to the house with the recommendation that it "do pass."

The bill, which is an act to create the Georgia State Industrial Home for Girls, is due to the efforts of the leaders of the Men and Religion Forward Movement of Atlanta. The home in reality will be a house of correction for girls under seventeen years of age.

Before a vote was taken on the proposed measure Ed Wohlwender, of Muscogee, suggested that action be deferred and that the bill be sent to the appropriations committee for its consideration. With the approval of that committee, he said, the bill would pass without the slightest fight on the floor of the house.

There was objection to this, however, by Mr. Jones, of Coweta, one of the authors of the bill. The appropriations committee, he declared, had stipulated that money wanted for institutions not provided for by law, must be sought in separate bills and that he would rather carry the fight to the floor with the penitentiary committee's favorable recommendation than take chances of an unfavorable report on recommitment.

COMMITTEE FAVORS BILL TO PROBATE PRISONERS

Prison reformers won a signal victory Wednesday afternoon, when general judiciary committee No. 2 returned a favorable report on the bill of Shelby Myrick, of Chatham, and O. T. Gower, of Crisp, providing for the probation of certain persons convicted of a misdemeanor.

This is in effect a suspension of sentence until the prisoner out on probation proves unworthy of the leniency at the hands of the trial judge.

Six-Foot Snake Comes To Atlanta from Colon Asleep Among Bananas

As "Dusky Dick," the black "banana shifter" of the Broad street warehouses, was getting a strangle hold on a bunch of the fruit Wednesday afternoon, a slimy something uncoiled itself from the middle of the cluster and slid its flat head across the hand of his collar.

A yell like a soul plunged into Tartarus split the bustle of downtown Atlanta. "Dusky Dick" fled screaming down the street, his kinky wool stretching skyward.

Behind him a Greek banana wagon, overturned, spilled melons and peaches over the pavement. Its owner was halfway up a telephone post. Women screamed. Men cursed and fell over each others' heels getting out the way.

While across the hot bricks, in and out among the yellow sprawled bananas, twisted a six-foot snake, resurrected from a six-months' snooze which begun in Colon, Panama.

It ended beneath a brickbat hurled from a store fireshold which caught the reptile back of the neck and crushed the spotted scales into a bloody mass.

When his snakeship chose a bunch of bananas for his hibernating headquarters, he was not wise. Probably he crawled into them from the wharf of some shipping station on the far-off Isthmus. It must have been a rude awakening to find himself tossed about on the shoulders of Dusky Dick, and ruder still to be given an Atlanta welcome in brickbat style.

STATE INSTITUTIONS TO GET MAINTENANCE FIRST

General Bill Will Not Cut Off Regular Appropriations, Says Wheatley

A great deal of apprehension has been created among the officers and friends of various state institutions by the publication in some of the newspapers of a story to the effect that no state institution created since the adoption of the constitution, nearly fifty years ago, would be provided for in the general appropriation bill soon to be passed by the house of representatives.

This was an error. The general appropriation bill, as prepared by Chairman Crawford Wheatley and his associates on the appropriations committee, will provide money for the maintenance funds, or fixed charges, of all state institutions as well as all other appropriations fixed by law.

What the appropriations committee really intends to do is to prevent the general appropriation bill from being weighted down with special appropriations. All special appropriations as well as increases to state institutions must be provided for in special bills which will stand or fall on their merits.

CHILD-WIFE GETS HER FREEDOM IN DIVORCE

Over 100 Divorce Verdicts Have Been Signed in Past Three Days.

One of the features of the last session in the July term of the divorce court was the story told by Mrs. Carrie E. Epperson, who secured a verdict from W. J. Epperson, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Epperson told the court that in 1908 when she was scarcely fifteen years old, she married a man twice as many years.

In a few months, the child-wife told the court, her husband tired of her and left her.

Judge George L. Bell, who was presiding, directed the jury's verdict.

Over 10 first and second verdicts have been signed by the foreman of the jury in the divorce court since Monday.

MAYOR SIGNS $125,000 CHECKS FOR CREMATORY

Balance of $135,000 to Be Paid When Plant Is Finally Accepted by City

Mayor Woodward Thursday morning signed checks for $125,000 to the Destructor company of New York in part payment for the new crematory.

One was a check for $37,686.51 payable from the bond issue fund specified for the building of a crematory, and the other was for $87,313.49 payable from ordinary revenue appropriated by council for the crematory.

H. H. Dowd, Jr., sales engineer of the company, who came to Atlanta Wednesday to receive the payment, forwarded the money to New York at once. In order for the city treasurere to meet the payment, should it be demanded in cash, it was necessary for transfers to be made in the city's various bank accounts, so that $125,000 would be on deposit in one bank.

The price of the crematory under the new or present contract is $260,000. The balance, which is $135,000, is to be paid by the city when the plant shall have demonstrated in actual operation that it will perform its various guarantees. It may be one month or six months before the balance is paid.

The original contract, which the state supreme court declared null and void, provided for the city to pay $276,000 for the crematry, $75,000 in cash and the balance in yearly installments of $25,000, with interest at 6 per cent.

Mayor Woodward figures that his fight to reduce the price of the plant has saved the city the following:

Reduction of price, $16,000; saving of interest on deferred payments, $11,000; extras required by the construction department, $8,000; interest accruing from the date of the approval of estimates amounting to $125,000, $1,000; total, $34,000. In addition to this saving, the mayor declares his fight put an end for all time to the city doing business on credit. This, says the mayor, will be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the city in the future.

ROTARY CLUB FORMED BY ATLANTA BUSINESS MEN

An Atlanta Rotary club, which will become a part of the International Association of Rotary clubs, was organized this week by Atlanta business men at a meeting called by Ivan E. Allen and held in the assembly room of the chamber of commerce.

The objects of this organization are to develop and exchange the newest, best and most successful business ideas, to promote progress and honorable methods of trade, and to advance and build up the commercial interests of the community.

Rotary clubs in various American cities are taking a leading part in business and civic progress, and the club organized here is expected to become a vital factor in Atlanta's growth.

The organization meeting was presided over by Mr. Allen, who had been designated as organizer for Atlanta by the international association. The following officers and directors were elected:

President, Hubert W. Anderson; vice president, Henry W. Grady; second vice president, Ben Lee Crew; secretary, Howard Gelders; treasurer, W. E. Lounsbury; directors, Ivan E. Allen, chairman; A. S. Adams, R. L. Foreman, L. D. Hicks, Jack H. Lewis, E. H. Cone, George M. Greene, Evelyn Harris, Fred Houser, Francis E. Kamper, Charles D. Atkinson, W. L. Halstead, E. H. Goodhart, W. B. Seabrook and Paul P. Reese.

Although the new organization has members prominent in the Ad Men's club and the chamber of commerce, the Rotary club is in no way connected with either of those institutions.

SHOWERS PREDICTED THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Banks of clouds sweeping over the city all day Thursday gave promise of rain in Atlanta before night, and incidentally resulted in a comparatively cool day.

The official forecast was for showers Thursday night or Friday. At 2 o'clock Friday the thermometer reached its highest temperature of 88 degrees, and it appeared that prospect of rain would keep the mercury down during the afternoon.

Wednesday was one of the coolest days the city has had since the first of June. The mercury reached but 85, the maximum temperature since early last month.

The Red Men's Drum and Bugle corps is planning a big excursion to Tallulah Falls and return for Wednesday, July 16. The excursion will be operated for the purpose of securing funds to pay for the new uniforms recently purchased by the men, and tickets may be obtained from the Sterling Soda company, corner of Broad and Walton streets, at their store in the Empire Life building; from the Red Men's wigwam at 86 Central avenue, or at the station the morning of the excursion.

Stops will be made at Chamblee, Doraville, Norcress, Duluth, Suwanee, Buford, Flowery Branch, Oakwood and Gainesville to take on passengers. The rate from Atlanta and all other stations will be $1.50; children, half fare.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate a large crowd in comfort, and the members of the corps will maintain perfect order during the trip to and fro. The management has arranged with the Cliff house at Tallulah for the use of the dancing hall and a band will furnish music throughout the day for dancing.

On the night of July 12 the Red Men will parade through the principal streets of the city to boost the excursion.

FOUR MEN HAVE CLOSE CALL IN AUTO ACCIDENT

An automobile driven by A. M. Moon, of 705 Decatur street, and with two other occupants, collided with another machine of which O. H. Starnes, Jr., was the sole occupant, on the Adamsville road last night, and the four men escaped without injury from what seemed to be a fatal accident. The fenders of the Starnes machine and one wheel were torn off, while the other car suffered about the same amount of damage.

Young Starnes states that he was returning from a party near Center Hill and was turning into the Adamsville road from the Peyton road when the other machine swerved toward him and he was unable to prevent the collision. Cases were made against the men in the Moon car for reckless driving, while Starnes was taken to his home by County Officers Heard and Carter. No case was made against him.

THURSDAY LAST DAY FOR REPORT ON COUNTY FEES

Only Four Fulton County Officials Had Filed Reports at 2 p. m.

Thursday is the last day allowed by law for state and county officials receiving fees to make their sworn reports to the comptroller general for the second quarter of the present year. Up to 2 p. m. only four Fulton county officials had filed reports. They were Superior Court Clerk Arnold Broyles, sheriff W. C. Mangum, Ordinary John R. Wilkinson and Solicitor of the City Court Lowry Arnold.

These reports cover the receipts and disbursements for the months of April, May and June. Clerk Broyles' fees for this period amounted to $14,472.66 and he expended in salaries to his thirty-three clerks the sum of $10,464.57, leaving him a balance of $4,008.09.

Ordinary Wilkinson's receipts amounted to $6,282.28 and his disbursements were $2,511.80, the difference being $3,870.48.

Sheriff Mangum reported his receipts as $7,283.35 and his expenses for the hire of eighteen clerks, $6,971.08. This left him a net income for the quarter of $404.72."

Solicitor Arnold's receipts aggregated $3,191.51 as against salary expenses of $749.97, his net receipts being $2,441.54.

MURRAY COUNTY SITE IS BEFORE LEGISLATURE

A hearing on the bill to designate Chattsworth as the county seat of Murray county instead of Spring Place will be held by the general judiciary committee No. 2 of the house Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the hall of representatives.

Several months ago an election on the removal of the county seat was held in Murray county. The proposition as advertised by the ordinary was whether the county seat should remain at Spring Place or be removed to Chattsworth.

When the election was held it was found that a number of the voters had cast their ballots in favor of giving the conty seat to Eton. There were a sufficient number of votes in favor of Eton to prevent Chattsworth obtaining the necessary two-thirds required by law.

The question was brought to the secretary of state, who held that in as much as Eton had not been advertised in the proposition, it could not be legally considered. Therefore, he threw out the Eton votes which gave to Chattsworth two-thirds of the remaining votes cast.

UNIVERSITY TRUSTEES DISCUSS APPROPRIATIONS

Members of the boards of trustees of the University of Georgia and its allied branches met Thursday in the state library to discuss just what special and increased appropriations should be asked for the various institutions of the system.

Governor Slaton was present for a portion of the session, and called the attention of the trustees to the financial condition of the state and the absolute necessity for a policy of rigid economy in the making of appropriations.

Committees from the board probably will go before the appropriations committee Monday in behalf of the institutions they represent. Several hundred thousand dollars would be required to meet the demands of the university and its allied schools. It is said, however, that they will ask only for appropriations that are urgently and immediately needed.

MT. TAMALPAIS FIRE MAY SOON BE UNDER CONTROL

Flames Decrease in Fury—Army Officer Refuses to Risk Men's Lives

SAN FRANCISCO July 10.—A still, cloudless dawn brought hope to Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur that before nightfall the forest fires on Mount Tamalpais would be so thoroughly beaten out that the afternoon trade winds would not fan them to new danger as they have for the last three days.

Faint columns of thick smoke from the beds of the canyons showed that four fires smoldered. Mill Valley was still in danger.

Communication with Muir woods, a grove of giant sequoias, was still broken this morning. One newspaper man, who made the trip on foot, brought back word that although sixteen cottages on the edge of the forest had been destroyed, the big trees were untouched.

Captain Charles P. Plunkett, commanding the cruiser South Dakota, marched 600 of his men from the Mill Valley station up to the border of the fire in Cascade canyon early this morning, took a look at the fire, and marched them back again:

"It would take all the people in California to put out that fire. Let it burn out. I have expert gun pointers among my men, each worth $25,000 to the government. I am not going to risk their lives."

CRAWFORD'S DEATH DUE TO PNEUMONIA ATTACK

Doctors, Who Attended Dying Man, to Testify His Death Due to Natural Causes

A number of witnesses will be used by Attorneys Reuben R. Arnold and Burton Smith, counsel for Mrs. Mary Beele Crawford, to refute the testimony of Dr. H. F. Harris, and another physician, who examined the body of Joshua B. Crawford, exhumed in June four years after his death.

While the plaintiffs in the Crawford will case were introducing witnesses in the tedious trial Thursday, it became known that counsel for Mrs. Crawford had a number of witnesses, who will not agree with the testimony of Dr. Harris.

On the witness stand Wednesday Dr. Harris gave it as his decided opinion that the death of Joshua Crawford was not caused by pneumonia. Dr. Harris declared that he based this opinion solely on his examination of the body four years after death. He said he found traces of opium or morphine in the stomach.

To controvert this will be the testimony of Dr. J. W. Hurt, who attended Crawford at and for a long time prior to his death and who says that death was caused by pneumonia. Several other physicians, who were called in consultation before the aged man breathed his last, will give similar testimony, it is said.

Dr. Harris stated that he found only a fraction of a grain of morphine in Crawford's stomach. Dr. Hurt will testify, it is said, that he gave the deceased one-fourth of a grain of morphine each day for some time before his death, and this will easily account for the trace of the drug found at the exhumation.

The fight of the "Crawford heirs" to wrest Joshua Crawford's estate from his widow, Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, has been on trial before James N. Anderson for several months, and will continue several weeks more.

WOMEN AS OFFICERS OF PROBATION INDORSED

ty Equal Suffrage league, and Miss Augusta Howard, the organizer and first president of the Georgia Suffrage association, also made short talks.

Speaking of the misunderstanding between the Georgia Suffrage association and the Civic league, Mrs. McLendon says that the Civic league has barred themselves from membership in the state association by failure to pay dues before the time stated by the by-laws and constitution of the association, but that upon proper application and payment of dues they will be again admitted.

OPEN SESSION.

While some fife and drum crops stood out in the middle of the Washington street viaduct and sounded stirring "guard mount" marches, Wednesday evening, the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association occupied the hall of the lower house of the Georgia legislature with a little gray-haired woman in the speaker's chair and with women scattered at the legislators' desks.

Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, president of the state association, directed the program of speeches. It lasted until 10:30 o'clock. The audience filled the hall comfortably, and a dozen or so were in the gallery.

It was the beginning of the 1913 convention of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association. It followed a stirring and nearly unsuccessful effort to get a state house hall to hold it in, the suffragettes having resolved at one time to meet on the capitol steps if they could find admittance nowhere else.

SENATE WALKS IN TRAP.

But at the time they did convene, the association's members not only had secured the one legislative hall, but had won also the choice of the other.

After its wrangle Wednesday morning over the suffrage matter, the senate was tired and somewhat disgusted, and was quite ready to accept Senator M. C. Harvey's emphatic motion that thereafter all such trivial and fruitless matters be referred to the senate committee on halls and rooms—with full power invested in the committee to act as it might see fit. The senate walked squarely into the trap. The committee possesses three members who favor woman suffrage workers, and one who is indifferent. Its action in granting the use of the senate chamber was taken unanimously.

NO OPPONENTS PRESENT.

No opponents of the organization were present when the association convened, and Mrs. McLendon stated privately that she did not anticipate any opposition to the program during the morning session at least.

The program called for an invocation by Mrs. McLendon; readying of the executive committee minutes, by Mrs. A. C. Daniels, recording secretary; the appointment of various attaches and committees; welcome to distinguished guests and fraternal guests; introduction of delegates by Mrs. A. R. Woodall, and reports of the various officers.

Thursday evening the second meeting in the hall of representatives will be held, closing the state convention. Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Cartersville, sister of the president, Mrs. McLendon, will be one of the speakers then. Another will be Miss H. Augusta Howard, of Columbus, who organized the state association in 1890 and was its first president for several years. Leonard J. Grossman, legal adviser of the association, and Rev. Dr. J. Wade Conkling, an Atlanta pastor, will be the two men on the program. There will follow some extemporaneous talks from women leaders in the convention.

The Perfect Baby Of The Future

A Simple Method That Has a Wonderful Influence upon The Future Infant.

Too much cannot be said for a wonderful remedy, familiar to many women as Mother's Friend.

It is more eloquent in its action than all the health rules ever laid down for the guidance of expectant mothers. It is an external application that spreads its influence upon all the cords, muscles, ligaments and tendons that nature calls into play; they expand without pain, without strain.

Mother's Friend must, therefore, be considered as a direct influence upon the character and disposition of the future generation. It is a conceded fact that, with nausea, pain, nervousness and dread banished, there is stored up such an abundance of healthy energy as to bring into being the highest ideals of those who fondly theorize on the rules that insure the coming of the perfect baby.

Mother's Friend can be had of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle. It is prepared by Bradfield Regulator Co., 329 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Write them for an instructive book to expectant mothers.

"VOTES FOR WOMEN" IS THEIR PLEA

TWO of the leaders in the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association, which is holding its annual convention in Atlanta. On the left is Mrs. Margaret Thornton McWhorter, who was one of the chief speakers at the opening session of the suffragists held in the hall of the house of representatives Wednesday night. On the right is Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, snapped by the camera man as she presided over the gathering. Mrs. McLendon has long been a believer in woman's rights and has written many forceful articles setting forth the reason why Georgia women should be given the vote.

IN LOCAL THEATERS

(Criticisms of initial performances at local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

Grand—Talking Pictures.
FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

The Bijou has a clever offering, "Along Broadway." Both performances yesterday played to standing room only. This can be easily understood when such clever people as Ingalls, Duffield & Ingalls, Miss Marguerite Calvert, the Madison Sisters, and Albertus the Jugsler, together with a clever cast present this tuneful and lively musical comedy.

There are seven feature acts on the bill this week at the Forsyth, and it's really hard to declare which one of these numbers has most impressed the theatergoers.

Eva Taylor and her company in "After the Wedding" have been awarded the palm that should go to the best classy comedy playlet of the season.

Warren & Blanchard, the blackface comedian, and his white face assistnt, have scored the same hit that they always have registered in Atlanta.

Houghton, Morris & Houghton, a trio of bicyclists, introduce for the first time here an innovation on the motorcycle, on which they perform the tricks generally performed on a straight wheel.

Commencing with matinee on Monday and continuing throughout the week Valerie Bergere and her company will present for the first time in Atlanta Miss Bergere's latest success "Judgment."

Britt Wood, the rube comedian and the Metropolitan Minstrels will add to the drawing power of this offering.

The Grand is now enjoying a good patronage for the motion picture entertainments daily offered from 2:30 until late at night.

The management has arranged for a service of exclusive first run pictures, and present also a series of Edison talking pictures, making a program of something more than an hour that is repeated from the opening until closing time at night each day.

SLATON URGED TO SAVE NEGRO FROM GALLOWS

A last attempt to save the neck of Oscar Dewberry, the negro is in the Fulton county Tower sentenced to hang on Friday for the murder of Horace Dodson, a white youth, will be made Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock when Attorney Lowndes Calhoun, representing the negro will urge Governor Slaton to commute Dewberry's sentence to life imprisonment.

The prison commission having failed to make a recommendation for executive clemency, Attorney Calhoun asked the governor for a hearing, which was granted. Attorney Calhoun will present a letter from Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey urging a commutation of sentence.

Solicitor Dorsey wrote the prison commission that he had urged Judge W. E. Thomas, who presided at the trial of Dewberry, to grant a new trial and permit the negro to ta kea life sentence. He said that he never did think that the negro should hang, as he had never felt that Dewberry fully intended to kill Dodson.

Dodson was stabbed to death at the corner of Pratt and Decatur streets in May of last year.

A Problem for the Moralists.

The announcement that the the receipts of the Government's "conscience money" fund were less for the fiscal year recently ended than ever before has bestirred the moralists to a lively debate, highly hopeful on one side but on the other keenly cynical. For the past century, the federal authorities have been receiving through anonymous communications divers sums of money from soul-stricken persons who in one way or another had cheated or pilfered the Government. The amounts were sometimes considerable, though mostly small, and sometimes they were in restitution for wrongs done twenty or thirty years before. The average fund thus received has been about four thousand dollars a twelvemonth; in 1902 it approached thirty-six thousand dollars.

But for the year ended June the thirteenth last, it amounted to only two thousand, eight hundred and fourteen dollars. How is this marked falling-off to be explained? "Why simply on the ground that we are growing honester," say the optimists. "Not at all," retort the pessimists; "it merely means that we are growing more reticent of our thefts."

Whether we have fewer larcenies or fewer confessions, tender consciences to begin with or tougher consciences in the end is a question which each will answer largely according to his particular view of human nature. It would seem, however, that since such confessions are made anonymously and thus afford a certain sense of moral relief without the peril of punishment, the fact that fewer were forthcoming last year is evidence that there really were fewer to be made. Of humanity in general, as of individuals, it is always better to think well rather than ill, if we have the slightest chance to do so.

Not every institution, baseball included, is a pennant winner.

A City's Need of Park Reserves

"Cities that acquire park property in excess of present needs," says the Louisville Courier-Journal, "show foresight in so doing." The fact is a growing city must consider the future as well as the immediate demand for recreation centers, if it is to meet this vital problem with due economy and efficiency. A few years ago there were Louisville citizens who protested that too much money was being spent in purchasing park lands for which there was no apparent need; but today, according to the Courier-Journal, Louisville is not only making good use of all its park area but is also demanding additional tracts, especially for the purpose of playgrounds. The same thing is true of Chicago which invested vast sums of money in laying out a park system, designed to serve the people for long years to come but which now realizes that even this liberal plan is being outgrown.

Atlanta has particular reason to heed such lessons, for, there are few cities in all the Union that are growing so rapidly both in population and in real estate values. Land which could be bought cheaply ten years ago is today worth a fortune and within another decade, it will be almost beyond the reach of the municipal income. Yet, the public's need, and especially the children's need, for recreation centers will grow correspondingly; parks and playgrounds must be had at any price.

It is, therefore, the part of wisdom for the city to use every opportunity in acquiring park lands. Atlanta is particularly in need of small neighborhood parks and with due watchfulness these can be secured at comparatively little cost. Every ward should have its shady retreat of rest and play. The park department is turning its appropriations to good account; it should be encouraged in its present work and as far as is possible provided with resources for meeting those larger necessities which the future will inevitably bring.

No man is happy unless he thinks he is.

Some men are too tender-hearted to beat a rug.

One Among Many W. & A. Problems.

The resolution offered in the Senate Wednesday by Senator Foster, of the Twenty-seventh district, on certain vital questions concerning the Western and Atlantic railroad is timely and well-advised. The announcement that the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway is to be sold under foreclosure proceedings has prompted the suggestion that the State purchase this property as a means of extending its own road to the sea. The proposal is at least worth considering; and that is the intent of Senator Foster's resolution.

This and the many other important matters bearing upon the future of the State's road should be submitted to the prompt and painstaking inquiry of a Legislative commission especially detailed to study this subject. The extension of the Western and Atlantic to the sea is but one among scores of far-reaching questions that must be determined in the near future, if the State's interests are to be protected. Whether the road is again to be leased or is to be operated by the State, there are certain practical issues that must be met; and the probability of a new lease rather than State operation makes all these issues all the more pressing.

There are, for instance, the question of the ter*minal properties at Atlanta and Chattanooga*, the question of the rental price and of provisions for improvements in the road in order that its value and service may continually increase. If the State is to be prepared to deal advantageously with this, its greatest single possession, the Legislature must begin a careful study of each of these weighty questions without further delay, for, the present lease of the Western and Atlantic will expire in about six years.

As to the proposed purchase of the A., B. and A. as a means of extending the State's road to the sea, that, of course, is a matter calling for close investigation. Whether such a deal would be advisable remains to be determined. Certainly, however, it offers many interesting possibilities; and it would seem that on well considered terms it would afford the State an exceptionally rich opportunity. The A., B. and A. traverses a fertile and prosperous section of Georgia. Its equipment and facilities for service are admirable. Reaching from Atlanta to Brunswick, it presents the logical link which would make the Western and Atlantic a Statewide road, thereby increasing the latter's value incalculably and rendering it the natural and permanent arbiter of freight rates in Georgia.

All such considerations are, to be sure, conditioned upon the further facts and views which a Legislative inquiry may develop. But the important thing is that such an inquiry be instituted at the earliest possible day.

The Balkans are crying for peace, but by 4 o'clock the war will be on again.

The currency bill will doubtless be passed in time to make Christmas presents easier.

The Triumph of Georgia Tomatoes.

If recent developments continue, we shall soon be talking of Georgia's achievements rather than of her possibilities in truck farming. A carload of tomatoes grown near Tifton was sold in New York the other day at the highest prices the market offered and in competition, too, with large shipments from other States where the truck industry has long been established. It was the high quality of the Georgia products, say the commission men, that disposed of them so easily and on terms so profitable.

That is but one among scores of similar instances showing the extraordinary success of truck farming in this State. Planters who formerly devoted all their land and labor to cotton have begun, somewhat fearsomely at first, to experiment with food crops. They find in most instances that the soil is ideally suited to such purposes and that the returns are not only surer than those from a single crop but taken the seasons through are also larger financially. This movement has been going steadily forward for several years, so that today we find in every part of the State, and particularly in South Georgia, many thriving truck farms whose owners are becoming independent and are establishing new agricultural standards.

Indeed, the truck farm is one of our most potent influences for progress in every field of agriculture. It makes possible an easy and striking application of scientific and businesslike methods of farming. It is a vital witness to the value of intensive cultivation, of soil study and careful management. Itself an offspring of agricultural education, it is doing more perhaps than any similar agency to bring the principles of such education into wide use and to turn them to fruitful account.

It is hard to laugh at misfortune after you have run into a rocking chair in the dark.

While we are burning up the wind with a motorcycle, it remained for Macon to revive the old fashioned horse race as a coming attraction.

THE PHILIPPINES

XXIX.—COMING OF THE AMERICANS

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The story of how the Americans came to the Philippines is one that always will be involved in controversy, and it is yet too soon to attempt to sift out the opinion and the bias from the tale as it is told. The main facts, of course, are apparent, but the interpretation put on them by Americans and Filipinos differs materially and Americans are by no means united in their opinions.

* * *

A day or two after war was declared between Spain and the United States, on April 24, 1898, to be exact, Commodore Dewey in command of the American squadron at Hongkong received a dispatch from E. Spencer Pratt, United States consul-general at Singapore, as follows:

* * *

"Aguinaldo, insurgent leader, here. Will come to *Hongkong; arrange with commodore for general co*operation insurgents Manila if desired. Telegraph." On the same day Commodore Dewey telegraphed in reply: "Tell Aguinaldo come as soon as possible." The necessity for haste was due to the fact that the squadron had been ordered by the British authorities under the neutrality laws to leave Hongkong by the following day. Aguinaldo did not leave Singapore until the twenty-sixth, and consequently reached Hongkong after Dewey had left.

* * *

As early as March 1, two weeks after the Maine was blown up, and nearly two months before war was declared Consul-General Williams at Manila had telegraphed to Commodore Dewey that there were 5,000 Filipino rebels camped near the city who would be loyal to the Americans in case of war with Spain.

* * *

Commodore Dewey and his squadron sailed into Manila bay on that memorable day of May 1 and immediately engaged the Spanish fleet. The battle of a few hours destroyed the Spanish forces but not an American was killed. There were two bombardments. One took place in the morning. Then occurred a remarkable incident in warfare. The American squadron drew off to the further end of the bay and ceased firing in time for breakfast. After a good feed our sailors returned to the fray with such good effect that the Spanish squadron strewed the beach of Cavite and hundreds of officers and men were killed and wounded. After "cease firing" had been sounded, the victorious Dewey said to his officers, "Gentlemen, a higher power than we won this battle today." Commodore Dewey found there was no organized insurrection of the Filipinos against Spain at that time so thought it safe to bring Aguinaldo over. He sent a dispatch boat to Hongkong to get Aguinaldo. He arrived with thirteen of his staff on May 19 and immediately boarded the flagship Olympia to call on the commander-in-chief after which he was allowed to land at Cavite and organize an army. This was done in order to strengthen American interests ashore and to weaken the enemy.

* * *

Admiral Dewey has been severely censured by some persons for this act, and others who sought to escape its consequences say that "he could not have foreseen the insurrection and neither he nor any of his officers, having no knowledge of the Malay character, could be expected to see the designs that lurked beneath their honeyed politeness and sycophantic manners." In other words, they could not suspect that the Filipinos fighting against Spanish dominion would do otherwise than submit to American claims.

Many other Americans hold that Dewey was justified in what he did, because the American people had gone to war with Spain for the avowed purpose of assisting the Cubans to their independence and professedly without any desire for territorial aggrandizement or colonial expansion. They also deny that Aguinaldo's aspirations for Filipino independence may be correctly described as evil designs, any more than Dewey's designs were evil.

* * *

Over a year later, after Aguinaldo had set up his revolutionary republic he wrote a letter to the Springfield Republican in which he claimed that Admiral Dewey had promised him that the Philippine islands would be free and independent. This was flatly denied by Dewey in the following statement to the Schurmann commission:

* * *

"The statement of Emilio Aguinaldo, under the date *of September 23 published in the Springfield Republi*can, so far as it relates to a reported conversation with me or actions of mine, is a tissue of falsehoods. I never received Aguinaldo with military honors or recognized him as an ally although I did make use of him and the natives in my operations against the Spaniards."

* * *

Shortly after Aguinaldo had been turned loose the Filipinos began to attack the Spaniards. It must be remembered that although the battle of Manila bay was fought on May 1, the actual occupation of Manila by American soldiers did not take place until August 13. It was during this interval and while American troops were coming over, that the reprisals on the Spaniards were committed. The hostile forces of the Filipinos grew daily and their number was greatly augmented by the native militia who had previously been given arms by the Spaniards to fight the Americans. Great *success followed, many Spaniards were taken prison*ers, and, while the Spanish troops remained quietly in Manila the Filipino forces made themselves masters of the entire island except Manila. About this time Aguinaldo issued a proclamation in which he was bold enough to promise the Filipinos a national independence, claiming to speak in behalf of the American government. He also declared himself dictator and appointed a cabinet.

* * *

The landing of the American troops at Paranaque on July 15 incensed Aguinaldo to such a degree that he would have attacked the Americans at that time but for his lack of arms and ammunition. According to the Schurmann report of 1900 he finally decided to await the fall of Manila, enter the city with the American troops, secure the arms of the Spanish soldiers if possible, and then turn upon the Americans. Meanwhile he sent to the neighboring towns orders for a *passive resistance and for the placing of as many ob*stacles as possible in the way of the American troops.

* * *

The second expedition went into camp, the front toward Manila and about one hundred yards from the coast near the place of landing. The camp was called Camp Dewey. At this time the Filipinos were maintaining lines five miles south of Manila and three miles north. The American troops immediately put out a line of outposts extending from the coast around the camp and eastward to Pasay and beyond. This move was in command of Brigadier General Anderson. When General Merritt arrived the Filipino insurgents were notified that an attack upon the Spaniards in Manila was contemplated and that they were *expected to re*tire in order that our front could be extended. This they did with a great deal of reluctance and army officers say that it is not true, as has been asserted, that there was any co-operation between the two forces against the Spaniards.

* * *

As to what happened thereafter there is no agreement. The American army officers asserted that the Filipinos had nothing whatever to do with the capture and occupation of Manila on August 13, saying that the Filipinos merely followed them into the city as the Americans." The Filipinos assert that they entered the city as allies. They have been known to charge looting against Americans, also.

The Secession of West Virginia

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

There was quite a disturbance raised some years ago when the southern states seceded from the Union and the flag at Fort Sumter was fired upon.

The condition in West Virginia is almost as serious. The row this time is not over born-black slaves, but over coal-blackened white miners. It all amounts to the same thing: it is the principle of the rights of private property against the principle of democracy, which means the rights of the people.

It interests directly ten million citizens of the United States, who are engaged in digging coal.

If any one wants to see how holy and untouchable Private Property is, let him observe contemporaneous happenings in West Virginia.

Private Property has bought up batches of valuable coal land of vast extent and prohibited any village or municipal authority from being exercised thereon.

Owning all the houses and lands, it has evicted any person not agreeing with its policies, so that the inhabitants cannot exercise any of the functions of self-government; they cannot levy taxes, pave their streets, own their cemeteries and churches, not have sidewalks, sewerage or waterworks except as the landlords allow.

Private Ownership has abolished, when it could not absolutely control, all civil authority, prevented citizens from joining labor organizations, hired armed guards, and herded American citizens in bull pens.

It has prohibited citizens from having any medical attendance except that furnished by its own physicians.

It has prevented citizens from erecting churches except upon such ground as it chose to rent, and has not allowed preachers to deliver any messages except such as are in harmony with its policies.

It has controlled the state authorities so that martial law has been declared in cases where citizens opposed its policies, and has railroaded thirty or forty men a day to the penitentiary, to be manacled as murderers, shaved and photographed as criminals, and branded for life as rogues, all without grand or petit jury or habeas corpus, and all because said citizens expressed their honest convictions or "assed" an officer.

It has caused the state to introduce an armored train and gatling guns and to shoot into the tents and their pine board dwellings of citizens under the pretext of protecting private property.

There has been a deal of outcry because Americans send missionaries to convert the heathen and have not first converted the home-heathen. West Virginia is commended to the missionary societies. Why so much money to uplift the Philippines when here is West Virginia right amongst us?

And if any one cares to see where a "government by business" would land us, let him go to West Virginia and look around.

Sir Isaac Newton's Home for Sale

A notice board outside the plain and unpretentious building on the east side of St. Martin's street, immediately to the south of Leicester square, indicates that the premises are for sale.

Externally there is nothing attractive about the building, but the title, Newton House, gives some indication of its historic interest.

After his removal from Jermyn street, further west, Sir Isaac Newton, the greatest English mathematician of his day, master of the mind and president of the Royal society, lived there for the last seventeen years of his life.

Though now dingy and dreary, St. Martin's street in 1710 was sufficiently attractive and exclusive to have among its residents ambassadors and high government officials, while Sir Isaac's entertainments drew to his house all the leaders of the scientific world of the day.

Many amusing anecdotes are told of Sir Isaac Newton during his residence in St. Martin's street. One of the best concerns Dr. Stukely, the most famous antiquary of his day, who called on Sir Isaac by appointment. The servant who opened the door said that Sir Isaac was in his study and must not be disturbed. Dr. Stukely sat down to wait for the great mathematician, as it was near his hour for dining, and by and by a boiled chicken under a cover was brought in for dinner.

An hour passed and Sir Isaac did not appear. The hungry and philosophic antiquary calmly devoured the fowl, and, replacing the cover on the empty dish, requested the servant to get another bird prepared for his master. Before the dish was ready Sir Isaac came down from his study, and apologizing for his dilatoriness, said: "Give me leave to take my short dinner and I shall be at your service. I am fatigued and faint." Removing the cover and discovering the empty dish, he observed to Stukely with a smile: "See what we studious people are; I forgot that I had dined."

It may have been courtesy, or it may have been forgetfulness.

The house is now given over entirely to business purposes.—Kansas City Star.

* * *

One evening when a water inspector was going his round, he stopped at one of the mains in a busy street to turn off the water owing to some repairs. He had just put the handle on the tap when a hand was placed on his shoulder by a tipsy gentleman, who said, in a drunken tone:

"So I have found you at last, have I? It's you that's turning the street round, is it?"

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Peter Rabbit had lost his appetite. Now, when Peter Rabbit loses his appetite something is very wrong with him. Peter has always boasted that he can eat any time and all the time. In fact, the two things that Peter thinks most about are his stomach and satisfying his curiosity, and most of the scrapes that Peter has gotten into have been because of those two things. So when Peter loses his appetite or his curiosity there is surely something the matter with him.

Ever since Old Man Coyote the Wolf had come to live on the Green Meadows Peter had been afraid to go very far from the dear old briar patch where he makes his home, and where he always feels safe. Now there wasn't any reason why he should go far from the old briar patch. There was plenty to eat in it and all around it, for sweet clover grew almost up to the very edge of it, and you know Peter is very fond of sweet clover. So there was plenty for Peter to eat without running any risk of danger. With nothing to do but eat and sleep Peter ought to have grown fat and contented. But he didn't.

Now that is just the way with a lot of people. The more they have and the less they have to worry about the more discontented they become and at last positively unhappy. There was little Danny Meadow Mouse living out on the Green Meadows. He was happy all the live-long day, and, yet he had no safe castle like the old briar patch where he could always be safe. Every minute of every day Danny had to keep his eyes wide open and his ears wide open and his wits working their very quickest, for any minute he was likely to be in danger. Old Man Coyote or Reddy Fox or Granny Fox or Digger the Badger or Mr. Blacksnake was likely to come creeping through the grass any time, and they were always hungry for a fat Meadow Mouse. And as if that wasn't worry enough, Danny had to watch the sky, too, for Old Whitetail the Marsh-hawk or his cousin Redtail or Blacky the Crow, each of whom would be glad of a Meadow Mouse dinner. Yet in spite of all this Danny was happy and never once lost his appetite.

But Peter Rabbit, with nothing to worry him so long as he stayed in the old briar patch, couldn't eat, and grew more and more unhappy. "I don't know what's the matter with me. I really don't know what's the matter with me," said Peter as he turned up his nose at a patch of sweet tender young clover. "I think I'll go cut some new paths through the old briar patch."

Now, though he didn't know it, that was the very best thing he could do. It gave him something to think about. For two of three days he was very busy cutting new paths, and his appetite came back. But when he had made all the paths he wanted, and there was nothing else to do he lost his appetite again. He just sat still all day long and moped and thought and thought and thought. Now the trouble with Peter Rabbit's thinking was that it was all about himself and how unhappy he was. Of course the more he thought about this the more unhappy e grew.

"If I only had some one to talk to and feel better," said he to himself. That reminded him of Johnny Chuck, and what good times they used to have together when Johnny lived on the Green Meadows. Then he thought of how happy Johnny seemed with his little family in his new home in Farmer Brown's old orchard in spite of all the worries his family made him. And right then Peter found out what was the matter with him.

"I believe I'm just lonesome," said Peter. "Yes, sir, that's what's the matter with me.

"I isn't good to be alone too much, I've heard my mother say,
It makes one selfish, grouchy, cross, and quite unhappy all the day.
One needs to think of other folks, and not of just one's self alone
To find the truest happiness and joy, and real content to own.

"Now that I've found out what is the trouble with me, the question is, what am I going to do about it."

COULDN'T WAIT TILL NOVEMBER TO BE WED

There must be something about the breezes which sweep Atlanta in the summer time that is very romantic. One would judge so at least from the numerous weddings, "surprise" and otherwise, which are keeping the city's colony of ministers jumping from morn till night.

Another took place Wednesday night when Miss Myrle McLean and Mr. Gordon Hanson decided that they just couldn't wait until the chilly month of November to get married, but must wed in July. True, their wedding had been announced for November, but what's a little thing like that?

They let one friend in the secret and the three of them went to the home of Dr. John F. Purser, 204 Lee street, Wednesday evening, where the knot was tied. But somebody told, and now the "secret wedding" is common knowledge among the friends of the bride and groom.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO GET EXHIBIT BUILDING

At the first meeting of the committee on the permanent manufacturers' exhibit of the chamber of commerce, held Wednesday afternoon, the question of a building for the show was discussed, and a subcommittee was appointed to go into the matter immediately, and to determine which of the several propositions submitted to the chamber is best.

One of these was to lease a building on long term, another to buy outright, and still a third to lease with the option of buying at a later date, and it is understood that the committee favors this latter plan.

The following compose the subcommittee: Brooks Morgan, chairman; V. H. Kriegshaber, Bolling Jones and J. K. Orr.

Shapely, stylish, snug in fit, with not a seam to stretch or split.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

THE DOOR

A Saturday bargain sale was in progress. It had begun at 8 o'clock and the store was still crowded. Women filled the aisles, jostling, eager, curious. The air was stale with perfume, heavy with dust rising from the floor and shaken from innumerable garments, and it was still a full hour before closing time.

Eve wondered dully how she was going to endure that hour. She had, indeed, not been very free when she came to the store that morning. She had risen at 6 o'clock, fried an egg, and made some tea over the gas jet and eaten from a corner of the bureau. There was no room for a table in the tiny hall bedroom at Mrs. Corrigan's. She had walked a mile because a nickel is a nickel when you are only earning $6 a week, and have to pay out nearly a third of that for mere shelter. And she would have to walk the mile back again tonight providing she were alive at closing hour.

She sank into unconsciousness.

Eve was very pale. Her brown hair was moist about her forehead and purplish half-moons were deepening under her eyes. A dozen women stood before her counter snatching at the pieces of embroidery that remained to litter it. They did not see her. They saw only what they were after. Yet they assailed her with questions and because she could not answer all of them at once, grumbled at her "stupidity."

The floorwalker, hearing them, glanced at her as he passed by. Eve felt that glance, and a flush hid her pallor for an instant. "What a fool I am," she thought, sadly. At the same time she was trying to say politely, "Yes, this piece of embroidery will launder. It sold earlier in the season for twice what it is offered for here today. It would make a nice petticoat. I should think you'd need quite three yards. It's twenty-seven inches wide."

The floorwalker turned and came back down the aisle. His name was Will Anderson. He was tall, slender, dark. There were humorous dents at the corners of his stolid mouth and a certain sweet frankness in his clear eyes. Once on a time, and not so long ago, he, too, had sold bargain embroideries, but he had been efficient and had risen fast. No knowing where he would stop. He might have a store of his own some day, they said. These young country men had a way of getting what they wanted when they came to the city and showed themselves to be really in earnest.

He did not this time glance at Eve. His eyes were turned instead upon the counter just across the aisle from Eve's, where Beatrice Scott was also selling embroideries. Beatrice Scott looked as fresh as if she had just come from her bath. Her blond hair waved charmingly about her flushed face. Her movements were leisurely. She let her customers wait at her pleasure, and, though she had not sold one-half as much as Eve, her appearance spoke all the more loudly in her favor.

Beatrice smiled at the floorwalker, who smiled back at her. All this before the very eyes of poor Eve, who felt as if she had not a smile left in her. A wicked pain gripped Eve's heart and her hands trembled as she measured off the flouncing and somebody noticed them.

"Just see how clumsy this girl is!" said a woman's low voice. "She's painfully slow. I believe I'll go to the other counter. I like the looks of that blond girl there."

"Everybody goes to her; everybody likes her looks better." Eve thought, miserably. "But, then, she isn't as tired always as I am."

Why, indeed, should she be as tired? She lived at home. She had no board to pay, and every one of her $6 she could spend. There was always more money to be had from her parents. In consequence there was not a prettier or better dressed girl in the store than she.

Across her embroideries Eve, still with that pain in her heart, saw the floor walker pause, swing round and go back to say a word to Beatrice. Already the whole store was talking about their budding romance. And Eve had to listen—Eve who had lost her innocent heart to him at the first word he had ever spoken to her. Of course, she knew that he was above her as high as the sun is above any adoring blossom. She had tried to reason herself fancy free, but she only went on caring more and more. He of all the big, unfriendly city seemed to speak most clearly to her of the home she had left, perhaps because he, too, was from the country. The very fact seemed to make kinship between them. Yet he did not recognize it or her.

* * * * * * * *

It was, mercifully, 6 o'clock at last. "Time, goodness, it's over and tomorrow is Sunday!" Beatrice Scott cried as she donned her smart coat and bonnet. "Won't I rest, though! I shall carry home a box of chocolates and a good novel. And I shan't get up till noon. It's chicken-Sunday—so mother will have one of her good dinners. Can't you girls just imagine it?"

Eve could, indeed, well imagine it. Tears rushed to her tired eyes as she buttoned up her old coat. She stumbled as she went downstairs toward the street door. Tonight Eve had to put forth unusual control to force it open. She was struggling with it when quick, light steps pattered down the stairs behind her. The next instant she felt herself thrust aside, the door swung wide and Beatrice Scott, without a word of apology, went out past her. Eve caught a glimpse of a tall, slender figure waiting outside. Looking, she forgot to snatch her hand away and the heavy door swung back on its springs. It caught her fingers in a cruel, crushing grasp. One cry escaped her, too faint for any one to hear. But instantly, as if in response to it, the door was opened and her hand released. She large a dark face and Beatrice behind it before she sank into unconsciousness.

When she opened her eyes she was in a doctor's office. He was saying: "Too bad; it's her right hand. It will throw her out of work for some time."

"It was a piece of cruel carelessness," said another voice. And, with surprise she realized that the boor walker was there with her. Then she remembered that it must have been he who opened the door and freed her hand. She looked up at the dear, dark face, trying to smile bravely, for all the cruel throb in her maimed hand. She noticed that the humorous dents were gone at the corners of his mouth, which looked stern and hard and straight.

"How did I get over here?" she asked faintly. "I don't remember walking."

"You didn't walk. I carried you."

"Oh! I must have been pretty heavy."

"You were light as a feather."

The doctor was bandaging her hand with some soothing, strong smelling stuff. She was beginning to feel better. "It wasn't Beatrice's fault," she said.

"It wasn't anybody else's," he replied quickly. "May I use your phone a minute, doctor?"

"Help yourself," said the doctor.

So, as by magic, a taxicab was waiting for Eve when she came out of the office.

There was a brief, blissful ride to Mrs. Corrigan's. It almost made Eve forget her aching hand and the fact that there would not be any pay envelope now for some time, just when she needed it most. Before the gaunt, shabby boarding house he helped her to alight with exquisite deference.

"Don't worry about anything," he said. "I'll see that your absence at the store is explained and your place held open for you. Don't worry."

This time there was real brightness in her smile. "I won't—if you tell me not to," she said.

The next afternoon she was called down to the parlor to see a caller. She went expecting to find a girl from the store. And instead, she found—him!

"I felt anxious to see how you were," he said as they shook hands—left hand. ed. "Here's something to help you to fight your loneliness." And he put a box in her hand.

"It was only candy, but Eve looked as glad and astonished as if she had been presented with gold or diamonds. She looked down into the dainty sweetness, then up at him. "It's the first box of candy I ever had given to me," she said.

He laughed softly, quite as if he had liked to hear her say that. But Eve blushed, thinking that she had made an unnecessary display of her unsophistication.

With the candy to fill in the pauses. Even found it quite easy to talk to him. Other people came into the room and he moved over to the sofa beside her that they might be able to talk without being heard. Nothing urges an exchange of confidence between two young people like a sofa and an outsider or two. Eve found herself telling him everything—how she had come to the city and what a lonely, hard time she had had ever since. And she found that he was telling her just as much in return. More, even, for he mentioned Beatrice Scott.

"She's pretty classy," he said, with frank boyishness, "and I thought I was going to like her—she's r and better. But that night she let the door back on your hand—I saw it all, you know—and the way she has acted since—well, it opened my eyes. My mother raised me to be honest and to look out for the other fellow sometimes as well as myself all the time. By the way, I want you to meet my mother. She's coming up to town Wednesday. Can't you go to dinner with us and to the theater afterward? You'll like mother, she's fine. And she can't help liking you, because—"

But he paused, evidently thinking it best to reserve his reasons until some future time.

WEDDINGS

Skinner-Cofer

A quiet but beautiful wedding was that of Miss Janie Brown Cofer and Mr. Frank Childes Skinner, which took place at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening at the bride's home at 61 Oak street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Hammond, of Augusta, a few friends only being present.

Miss Ruth Cofer, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Jennie Sue Bell was bridesmaid. Little Virginia Bell Randall acted as flower girl, and Frederick Stewart, Jr., was ring-bearer.

The decorations of the home were distinctively simple. In the reception room and dining room feathery asparagus ferns were used, the dainty green plants being massed artistically on mantels and cabinets. The greenness was broken only by the white ribbons which defined the aisle down which the bridal party passed.

The ceremony took place in the parlor before a graceful altar of ferns and tall palms, in the midst of which a circular mass of bride roses formed an effective contrast. Lighted waxen candles in beautifully plain holders illumined the room softly.

The maid of honor entered first. She wore a gown of white and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses and maidenhair ferns, and following her came the bridesmaid, dressed similarly and carrying the same flowers. After her the little flower girl and ring-bearer entered. Young Miss Randall wore a lacy white frock and carried a basket of white roses. The ring-bearer, who was costumed in white also, bore the ring in a white rose.

The bride entered alone. Her wedding gown was of white crepe de chine. It was fashioned with the utmost simplicity, the long train giving graceful lines, and the touches of princess lace adorning it beautifully. The full tulle veil was held to the head by a narrow coronal of orange blossoms, and the same flowers caught the folds of tulle into soft draperies over the train. Her flowers were white carnations.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Skinner left for the mountains of north Georgia, where they will be for some time.

On their return they will be at home for a while with Mrs. M. J. Cofer.

Sumlin-Quick

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Quick and Mr. William D. Sumlin took place at Oakhaven, the country home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Quick, Thursday, July 3, at high noon.

The bride entered with her maid of honor, Miss Susie Quick, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Blanche Bennett, and was met in the drawing room by the groom and his best man, Mr. Lacy McGriff.

An unusual feature of the decoration of the drawing room, which was a bower of greenery, were the beautiful white bells of the Rose of Sharon.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Duncan, of the Ormewood Park and Center Hill Presbyterian churches.

The bride wore a gown of soft mull and lace, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore white over blue and carried white carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sumlin left for Virginia Beach, Washington City and the north, and after August 1 will reside on Park avenue.

Black-Passmore

The wedding of Miss Carrie Nona Passmore and Mr. William Nathaniel Black, took place July 2 at the home of the bride, near Weston.

The house was artistically decorated with masses of ferns and southern smilax. The space reserved for the wedding party was marked with tall pedestals, twined with smilax, and crowned with baskets filled with white oleanders, the handles tied with large bows of white mallies.

Just before the ceremony, Miss Tryphosa Black, sister of the groom, sang very sweetly, and Miss Elma Wise, of Plains, played the wedding march. Rev. H. T. Crumpton, formerly pastor of the Dawson Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

The ribbon bearers, Miss Nellie Arnold, of Parrott, and Master Kenneth McGrath, nephew of the bride, entered first, followed by the little flower girl, Virginia McGarrah, who preceded the bridal couple, carrying a pink basket from which she strewed white rose petals. She wore a dainty white lingerie frock.

The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of tan, with shoes, gloves and hat, trimmed in Nell rose, to match. She carried bride roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Passmore, and the groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Black, of Dawson. After the congratulations, the bridal party left by automobile for Dawson, where an informal reception was held at the home of the groom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Black and Misses Tryphosa and Nellie Black left Thursday morning for California and other western points of interest.

A pretty party of today was that given by Mrs. Edward Pierce at her Irman Park home in honor of her guests, Mrs. C. B. Pepper, of Columbia, S. C., and her sister, Mrs. W. C. Cook, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

The house was arranged with ferns and flowers, the punch bowl being banked in pink roses and nasturtiums.

The color scheme of pink and white was carried out throughout the house and in the pretty ices served.

The porch, with its many beautiful ferns and growing plants, was attractive, bridge was played, the prizes being silk stockings and china.

Assisting Mrs. Pierce were Mrs. A. C. Prim, Mrs. Frank Winecoff and Miss Susie Mae Park.

The guests were Mrs. W. C. Alexander, Mrs. Harry Anderson, Mrs. T. J. Butler, Mrs. George R. Black, Mrs. Mrs. H. M. Beutell, Mrs. W. M. Bearden, Mrs. John Cunningham, Mrs. Edwin Camp, Mrs. S. S. ## To Help Nature Shed a Bad Complexion

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of mercolized wax. Perhaps nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much, so quickly, without harm, without detaining one indoors, and at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding, or "curing" complexion defects, it removes them. The wax actually takes off the aged, faded sallow, freckled or blotchy cuticle, gently, gradually, causing no inconveniences. It is Nature's way of renewing complexions. When the natural process is retarded because of deficient circulation or nerve tone, mercolized wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. The new complexion which appears is a natural one, youthful, healthy, exquisitely beautiful. If you've never tried mercolized wax, get an ounce of it at the drug store, use at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning.

Another natural beautifying treatment —for wrinkled skin—is to bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is remarkably and instantaneously effective.—(Advt.)

Somebody's automobile has been standing for three weeks at the end of Gordon street in West End, near the L. & N. railroad tracks. The owner can get it by applying to A. N. Kahrs, 218 Oak street.

Mr. Kahrs reported finding the machine to the Auto Register company. It has been there for a long time, he says, without anyone claiming it. The number is 12693 Ga., a number which formerly belonged to a car belonging to F. J. Cooledge.

Mr. Cooledge says that this number was lost from his car some time ago, and that probably it was picked up by some one who may have used it on a stolen car. One tire has been taken from the derelict West End machine.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

The new fashions in dancing have strongly influenced footwear. This influence is shown for the shoes for the street as well as the evening, possibly because no hour of the day has been free from informal dancing. For the last year women and men have not been able to withstand the temptation whenever they were gathered within the sound of music, from a phonograph to a kettle-drum.

Those who sell shoes and stockings, like those who sell hats and gowns, have put the increase of trade in certain directions toward the fashion for dancing, and they may be right. One is not quite sure that the result is a good one, for women without taste or with a desire to be eccentric have made the most of the meretricious possibilities in modern dress.

There is no doubt that the romping dances of the day have brought back shoes of another generation. When the sandal that was laced with broad ribbon over the instep and around the ankle was first brought into fashion, the majority of women looked at it askance. They thought it was ugly and they did not believe it would last over a month. But it is not ugly and it has lasted. In truth, it looks as though it might be the dancing slipper of the near future instead of the high-heeled, pointed toe affair which we now wear.

Slippers Without Heels.

Women who care a great deal for dancing have adopted the heelless slipper with a slightly rounded toe. In this the ribbon is run through eyelets that are placed along the edges. The appearance is not unlike the French beach sandal which our women have taken up in the last two years for public dancing. Of course, the price is quite different.

Many of the fashionable New York women have their sandals made by a Russian ballet master who knows how to charge. He, like every one else who has had a part in this furore for fancy dancing, has reaped a rich harvest. Women who have been teaching dancing for years with a meager financial result have leaped into the successful class of money makers when they had the shrewdness to take a few lessons from the well-known exponents.

The woman who cannot dance in sandals, have the lace slippers with somewhat flat heels or high Spanish ones, but not the incurved French heel which is not as popular as it once was. It was Mrs. Castle who started the fashion for the straight high heel on a satin dancing slipper, and as her dancing costumes were continuously copied, this slipper came in for its share of popularity.

It may not be possible to get these laced slippers everywhere, but do not be discouraged as any bootmaker can order them and any shoemaker can insert small metal eyelets in the sides of the slipper you have, through which you can run your colored ribbon.

This is the form of footwear that has usurped all others in the fashionable sets for dancing, and the Roman boot, or modified form of cothurne is rapidly gaining a high place for afternoon wear.

There is a strong return toward any kind of shoe or slipper that has an open lattice work in front. Even the half shoe with the crossed straps of leather over the instep are in high fashion and yet we once thought them ugly. Our views change with the times.

Pumps Not As Popular.

There are many kinds of low shoes which are worn in and out of season, but there seems to be a falling off in the regulation pump. Colonial slippers of patent leather with extra large buckles of cut steel are immensely fashionable for everything except white gowns with which the white buckskin slipper is worn.

Oxford ties in white and black are not nearly as unfashionable as they once were, and canvas tennis shoes are adopted for all morning wear when one is not going in the street.

Afternoon Bridge Party

Miss Marion Neel and Miss Nina Neel were hostesses at an informal bridge party Thursday afternoon at their home on Fourteenth street in compliment to the members of the house party which Miss Dodo White is entertaining at her country home, "Woodshack."

The rooms, where the card tables were place, were attractively decorated with many lovely garden flowers, and at the close of the game tea was served from a beautifully appointed tea table.

The guests of the occasion included Miss White, Miss Helen Dunn, of Lake Providence, La.; Miss Elizabeth Stubbs, of Shreveport, La.; Miss Cleth Slagle, of Clarkes, La.; Miss Alice Jones, of Birmingham; Miss Martha Crane, Miss Helen Lykes, Miss Helen Stewart, Miss Louise Dobbs, Miss Marie Cobb, Miss Madge Pollock, Miss Jean Robinson, Miss Katherine Wyly, Miss Frances Bailey, Miss Elizabeth Denman, Miss Janet Hatcher, Miss Elizabeth Black, Miss Louise King, Miss Eleanor Williams, Miss Ruby McGaughey, Miss Bernice Schuessler, Miss Irene Bennett, Miss Pauline Randall.

To Visitors

Mrs. Harold Hilton entertained at bridge this morning in honor of Miss Leila Daley, of Texas, and Mrs. Bailey, of Montgomery.

To Keep the House Comfortable

No matter where you live or what the temperature of the out-of-doors, you can do a great deal to keep your house cool and comfortable if you spend a little time and thought on the subject.

Your doors and windows should be screened and your windows fitted with awnings on the sunny side of the house. Then every window may be opened, so that the air can come in and the flies and mosquitoes will, perforce, stay out.

If your rooms are darkened and well aired your house will be a pleasant place to come home to, especially if you have in the house a good supply of ice and a variety of sensible summer food.

Summer beverages are improved by bottled water, either naturally or artificially aerated, so it would be well to have something of that kind on hand also.

If you have not already perfected your arrangements for making your house a pleasant oasis during the warm weather, read the advertisements in THE JOURNAL and you will come across numerous suggestions that will help you to decide just what you want and where to get it.

First Game With Mobile Gulls Thursday—Three Games Here Will Have Important Bearing Upon Pennant Race

With a lead of just 1 1-2 games over Atlanta and one game over Montgomery, the Mobile club is in Atlanta the remainder of the week to fight for supremacy with the Atlanta Crackers. The first game is booked for Thursday afternoon with two others to follow.

It is up to the Crackers to get away with a good showing in this series, as every win proves of great assistance in ousting the Finn tribe from first place. A couple of straight wins will certainly be a big help, putting the Crackers above the Turtle clan. Then there is to be a third game, which, by the way, is not one of those early affairs and on this hinges the standing of the two clubs.

Right now Mobile is in better shape than the team has been for three weeks past and the bunch is putting up a fairly clever article of ball. Charley Starr has just gotten back in the game, and while not at his best, his presence lends strength and confidence to the club. He will most likely be found at second base in the game Thursday.

Gilbert Price, the Cracker southpaw who is always willing to work and who is a most dependable flinger, will be on the hill and opposed to this lad, who is making a bid for Southern league pitching honors, will be Pug Cavet. Now Cavet is one of Finn's best hurlers, and a good battle can be promised when the two get together. Both have had a good rest and should be ready to step to the hill land fling in good style.

That the Athletics of Philadelphia, who are out in front in the American league parade, will slow up and come back to the front ranks of the field, is the opinion of the Cleveland players, who have not given up hope of bagging the pennant by a long shot. They figure that the Naps have had their slump and that the Mackmen's let-up is to come later.

The Naps and Athletics have met eight times this season with the team from Penn state owning five verdicts. Despite this lead, the Naps say that in three of the games lost, they dropped the contest by one-run margins and that in the last mix-ups in Philadelphia, Jimmy O'Loughlin had a lot to do toward deciding the games in favor of Mack's favor.

The Naps point to the good fielding and good pitching of the teams. Right now the Sixth City aggregation is in a batting slump, but they contend that this will be only temporary. The only flaw in the play of the Naps is in the base work. The team is not a base-stealing aggregation and depends more on the slugging ability of their players to gather runs.

HIMMY A SUCCESSFUL LEADER.

If Joe Birmingham should be fortunate enough in piloting the Naps into first place next October, he will be hailed as a wonder. But should he land only second place, his first year as manager of the team, although he took hold last fall after Jarlly Davis dopped out.

Birmingham is only twenty-seven years old, by far the youngest pilot in the big leagues.—Exchange.

Woodville Winners

UNION POINT, Ga., July 10.—Woodville, the 1912 champions of middle Georgia, defeated the strong Union Point team here yesterday by the score of 7 to 4.

Not until the sixth did a Union Point man reach second. McWhorter, for Woodville, was well-nigh invincible. Wallace's ★★k at second was sensational.

Union Point played listless ball and was outclassed by their old-time rivals. A small crowd witnessed the game.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Union Point ..... 000 000 031—4 5 5

Bisland's Hit Scored Sweep

Atlanta Made It Eight in Row by Taking Last From Memphis Club

When Wallace Smith was purposely walked so Rube Kissinger could get a chance to fan Izzy Bisland the Cracker shortstop came through with just a three-bagger and it was all off. It doesn't do to peeve a player by insulting him when you walk a supposedly hard hitter to get to a weak sister.

Elliott Dent did the hurling for the Crackers and chalked up the eighth win without a defeat, the final count proving to be 5 to 3.

Besides driving in three runners with a three-bagger Bisland contributed a number of sensational fielding plays. In the first round his work on hard hits back of third by Butler and Ward were of the big league style. In the second inning he made a grand pickup of a hard rap by Seabough.

Wallace Smith knocked down one of the hardest infield drives ever made on the Force de Leon diamond when in the fourth round he flagged Schweitzer's hit. The drive, of course, went for a hit, but to even touch the ball showed real baseball.

Tommy Long scored a rather fluke two-sacker in the fourth. The ball was a clean hit to right field and when it struck a piece of board set in the ground it took a bad bound and enabled Tommy to reach second.

Wallace Smith is feared by all pitchers. With runners on the bags, the pitcher usually chooses to walk him. If Welchonce, Long, Bisland and Agler keep up their rapid fire bingling the Crackers won't have to hit to get runs. Just get a runner on the bags and they will be forced around by bases on balls.

A most unusual play arose in the fourth when with Long on third and Welchonce on first Whitey Alperman hit a hard drive down the third base line. Ward made a neat play on the ball and Welchonce thinking he had caught it on the drive raced back to first as Whitey dug for the same bag, the Cracker captain being sure that the ball had been trapped. When the two runners both got to the bag, of course, Welchonce was tagged out. Ward claimed a double play, assuring the umps he had caught the ball, but it was ruled against him and Welchonce called out.

Old Doc Seabough continues to play jam-up ball. He is always banging out a good, long hit at the right time, can yet throw to the bags and is good at coaching a pitcher.

Old Hurler Ill

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—Frank Donohue star pitcher of the major leagues years ago, is critically ill at his home here. Donohue while with the Philadelphia Nationals once pitched a no-hit game. Donohue *new ed from base-*ball while still a fair pitcher and took up other business with money he had saved in his baseball days.

DISTANCE RACES BOOKED FOR MOTORDROME FRIDAY

There Is Far More Danger in Long Race Than in Just a Five-Miler

Jack Prince will put on a seven-mile race at the motordrome for the first time Friday night, and the increase in distance should put much ginger into the races.

It is well enough to go three miles or five miles on a board track at the rate of seventy or eighty miles an hour, because that is over in two or three minutes, but the strain of a seven-mile race is very great.

Old heads at the game predict a spill on Friday night, and whether a seven-mile grind will cause the record of the Atlanta track for accident-proof races to be broken or not remains to be seen. It is certain, though, that the strain on machines and riders makes a spill far more probable in a seven-mile race than it has heretofore been.

Tex Richards walked away on Tuesday night, and for this he will have to answer on Friday, as Monty Graves and Jock McNeil have tuned up the motors which went bad on them Tuesday, and are out after the unbroken string of scalps which Tex gathered in on Tuesday.

CONTROL IS DENT'S HELP

Elliott Dent had his usual control in the game he won from the Memphis Turtles and not a player was walked. He was always able to throw the final strike over the pan, using such good control that it was never necessary for him to get in a hole by walking a batter.

In the fifth inning Dent threw eight successive strikes. Shanley, first up, was fanned on three pitched balls. Seabough, next up, had one strike called and on the next was thrown out by the pitcher. Kissinger was then thrown one strike and on the next singled to right after which Love hit the first pitched ball to Welchonce for an out. Butler, who was first up in the sixth, then had the first thrown ball called a strike, after which a ball was slipped over.

Dent is never bothered by walking a large number of batters, and for this reason the players have confidence in him. He can throw the ball where he wishes and can be depended upon to make each man hit and give his fielders a chance to aid him.

WON'T RETURN TO U. S. ANNOUNCES JOHNSON

HAVRE, France, July 10.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, arrived here today on board the Corinthian, and immediately on landing announced his determination never to return to the United States. He said he would in the future take up his residence in Paris.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

Mobile lost again, bringing her down within striking distance of the other first division clubs. Atlanta drew a few points closer to second place when she won and Montgomery tied. Chattanooga also won.

Atlanta is only one and one-half games behind Mobile.

In the National the story that the Giants won and the Phillies lost is becoming monotonous.

The Athletics won in the American.

Atlanta Has Good Chance To Top Race

Series With Mobile and Montgomery Most Important—Five Clubs Yet Stand Chance of Taking the Bunting

When it comes to showing a real baseball race the Southern league takes the palm, five teams now having a good chance to come out in first place. In most of the other leagues the leading team is out so far in front that there is nothing to it but a battle for be other positions in the first division.

In the past the Southern league race has been nothing. Several clubs have led, but owing to the fact that it was early in the season, no one paid any attention to the spurt of first this club and then another. But now it is different. Every game counts, and counts for a lot, as the real stretch has been reached.

All the clubs now have their full strength, and are fighting their hardest to get away with wins. Just now Mobile is leading, with Montgomery second, Atlanta third, Chattanooga fourth and Birmingham fifth, and each of these clubs stands a grand chance of taking the flag. It is true the Baron club is a bit far back, but Molesworth has a superior ball club and there is no telling just what kind of spurt the bunch will make.

The real battles for the first place berth take place during the next six days, when the Atlanta and Mobile clubs get together in three battles and the Crackers meet Montgomery for four games. These three teams are right now so closely bunched that a game won or lost will cause a big upheaval, and with the arrival of next Wednesday there is no telling just how the line-up will look.

Right now the Mobile team is one and one-half games ahead of Atlanta and one game ahead of Montgomery. This places Montgomery one-half a game ahead of Atlanta. In turn Atlanta is one and one-half games in front of Chattanooga, while Chattanooga is five games ahead of Birmingham, the leader of the second division. All of this goes to show that Birmingham is just seven games back of the leading club and yet stands a grand chance of getting right in the running.

While Atlanta and Mobile are fighting it out the Montgomery and Chattanooga teams will go to war, and with the end of the week there can't help from being a bunch of changes in the standing in the first division. These clubs are the four leaders and a game won or lost counts for much owing to the closeness of the race. By the end of the week it is possible for Chattanooga to be in first place or it may be Atlanta.

Doc Johnston—Of Cleveand, got one hit in four times up.

BUNTS AND BINGLES
BY JULIAN MURPHEY

One would think that managers would be a bit leery about ball play-ers who hail from the college at Champaign, Ill.

It is only natural for a baseball manager to believe he has a good club and will be right in the race, but Joe Birmingham and his Cleveland players go a bit far when they make the announcement that the Athletics are sure to fall and lose out in the race for the American league pennant. Of course, if Birmingham has any inside dope that Bender and Plank are to lose their hurling arms, Collins is to break a leg, McInnis is to develop fever and a few of the other stars become disabled, then his bunch is all right. Otherwise it is certainly to the bad.

ATHLETICS HAVE "WENT."

In the terms of the fan "the Athletics have gone from here." Right now this team looks better than any bunch of ball players that have fought for an American league flag in years and years. Of course, it is no certainty that they will win the flag, yet it is just about as sure a bet as was ever placed over any counter.

Every team has an off year. Last year the Mack tribe went badly and lost the flag. This year it is different. And when you speak of a difference you mean that the Mackmen are playing real baseball, all of which means a pennant.

Between the hot weather and the many tennis tournaments the laun-dry ladies who make a specialty of "lingerie" are working twenty-four hours each day.

SOUTHERN RACE BEST

With the New York Giants playing the class of ball they have turned out for many days past and Phillies, Dodgers and Cubs steadily dropping, the Southern league race is the prettiest in the country. From now until the end of the month it appears that ther will be shifts and changes most every day or so and all the changing is coming in the first division. It makes no difference when the second division bunches shift places but when the four leaders begin to shake the hat and drop around then the fans stand on their toes and begin to take interest.

Injuries, ability to make hits count for runs and the fall down of a few star hurlers is what is doing the work. At Mobile injuries have put the team somewhat in the hole. In Chattanooga Summers and Coveleskie are not pitching their usual grand ball and Elberfeld has no other reliable flingers and in Atlanta it is a case of Billy Smith's tribe using their hits to advantage.

MORE CHANGES ARE DUE.

Right now Mobile, Montgomery, Chattanooga and Atlanta are all so closely bunched that a game one way or the other counts much. The games this month are what might be termed "pennant games." They are the ones which will count most. No club ever won flags in May but after that every little win helps. In other words the fight for the flag has just started.

Some fans was very unkind to Bill Abstein, Turtle first sacker, when they continually reminded him of his work in a world's series. Bill more than once tossed badly to third when there was no chance to catch the runner, all of which helped to win the game for Atlanta.

TWO SPOTLIGHT SPORTS ETAOINUNU

Baseball, to the average fanatic, looks like pretty soft business. Ever belong to a second division club after July 15?

Frank Chance started his recent trip west where his only catcher in condition to work was a young busher attached to the translated monicker of John Smith. Which in scientific circles was reported to be something of a slump from a pair that used to work for him by the names of Johnny Kling and Jimmy Archer.

A MATTER OF PATIENCE.

John J. McGraw and several of his Giants still expect Pittsburg to come along. We are also in a position to predict that Christmas will arrive on the 25th of December.

CALLING THE TURN.

When interviewed by the stuff correspondent of these dispatches, Heinie Zim predicted that the German tennis team would hammer the padding out of the Americans this week in the next Davis cup round.

"You can say for me," remarked Mr. Zim, "that the Germans aer an unbeatable race when they are playing for a cup, a stein or anything that will hold beer. In addition to which I have just received a letter from the Kaiser in which he tells me that the weakest hitter on his club is something over .350, if they will only give this McLoughlin a low spitter it would be a pipe. They tell me he's a sucker on a curve ball below the belt."

EBB-TIDE.

Into the grime and dust of the Game;
Into the smear and blur of the fight,
Into the glory that men call Fame,
Stained and wrapped at the edge of night—
Enters a dream through the masquerade
Haunting victor and vagabond,
Of a kid that rests in the summer shade
And dreams of the battle beyond.

It may be that distance blurs the effect, but we don't seem to hear as much noise from the Cub owner as we did some time ago. It may be that he is gradually becoming adjacent to the fact that the deeper he retires into seclusion the better it is for every one concerned.

This latest move of his calls attention to a certain amount of diplomacy and if President Wilson needs an ambassador for Abyssinia he need look no further in the way of planning a popular move.

Griff states that Walter Johnson will easily win thirty-five games this season. But the Athletics have already won fifty and are merely getting warmed up to the main business ahead.

We don't need any golf information as to how one should make the drive, the approach and the putt. All the information we need is how one may hook all three together.

JOHNSON WOULD DO BETTER BY USING THE "BEAN BALL"

BOSTON, Mass., July 10.—The two Bills, Dinneen and Evans, don't agree on the Naps' chances to beat Walter Johnson again when they face the speed marvel at Washington next week. Evans thinks Johnson can be a certain winner if he will throw a few bean balls, while Dinneen says that no bean ball will drive any of the Nap regulars away from the plate.

Evans said recently that he asked Johnson how the Naps came to beat him and that Johnson replied, "I had everything, more than at any time this year. I had a day made to order, dark and dismal, and they beat me by walking into my fast ball. Even Bill Steen took a hop, step and jump and punched out a long hit. They did everything but knock the fences down."

Evans, however, thinks that Johnson can beat any club in the business sif he discards his good nature. "He's such a happy fellow," declared Evans, "that there isn't a trace of viciousness in him. But if he throws a few balls at the heads of the Naps they won't take any toe hold when they come to the plate. When I saw Johnson pitch against Boston he lost control of one ball and it came straight at Speaker's head. Tris fell into the dirt in a hurry, and when he got up he said, 'Bill, it takes a brave man to bat against Walter Johnson.' And Tris didn't take any toe hold again that day. I don't care what you say, if Johnson, with all his speed, shoots 'em at the batters a few times instead of the plate they won't have the nerve to step into his fast one."

Umpire Dinneen, however, holds to the opposite theory. He thinks the Naps have nothing worse than an even chance to beat any pitcher in the business. "They make up the greatest collection of free swingers ever gotten together on one club," said Dinneen recently. "Of course, they're going to be defeated often, but they will give any pitcher a battle. There isn't a man among the Cleveland regulars who can be driven away from the plate by any pitcher in the world. The batter will duck or fall down when a bean ball comes his way, but he gets right back into that toe hold position, ready to take a full swing at the next ball. They have a chance to beat Johnson, Mathewson, Wood or any of the great twirlers, for they are all great batters."

JOURNEYS TO THE DIAMOND
The Catcher

The catcher is the vastly disguised comic opera looking individual who kindly steps aside so a foul tip can dent the mask of that arch fiend and enemy to the human race, the umpire.

One of the foremost duties of the catcher is to kill the batter so he'll stand idly by while the pitcher flashes a third strike over.

The catcher is supposed to smother all styles of pitching. Studying the batter, the catcher signals the pitcher in regard to the brand of twister to send up. Sometimes you see the holster shake his head. Usually then the batter proceeds to puncture one of the ump's spots with a base blow.

When umpiring on the way to the bench the catcher remarks to the manager:

"I signalled that big stew for a curve ball, but he wanted to use a fast one inside. That big boob at the bat was all set for a fast one and cracked it. He couldn't hit a curve ball with a corkscrew. But you can't tell those ivory-domed pitchers anything."

Sometimes you see the catcher step wide as though to cage a wild pitch. The ball shoots over the inside corner of the plate, waist high. The catcher doesn't even lay his glove on the ball. Then you behold the backstop amble down toward the pitcher with blood in his lamps. You don't hear the confab, but you imagine the catcher is saying unkind things.

Traveling to the bench the catcher tells the manager that the bone-skulled pitcher crossed him with a spitter when he signalled for a curve ball.

The catcher wears shinguards and kneecaps, which probably account for the fact that whenever he is hit he immediately grabs one foot in his paw and dances around grotesquely on his other pedal.

On his left fin the catcher wears a baby bliss glove in which he plays pocket pool with balls and strikes. However, this glove really is added weight, as the warped contour of the catcher's other fist indicates that the great majority of the chuckins are repelled by his meat hand.

The catcher is supposed to have an arm of whalebone to cut off base stealers. However, he seldom flags these burglars. But instead of giving the catcher an error when he lines the ball all the way to the center fielder, the official scorer always credits the runner with a stolen base.

That being one of the scoring rules written by a catcher back in the dark ages of baseball, according ot the bugs in the stand.

Rally in the Ninth Gave Norcross Game

NORCROSS, Ga., July 10.—Buford and Norcross played a very interesting game of baseball here Monday. The locals seemed to have it all until the seventh inning, when the visitors put three across and then in the eighth scored six, tieing it up and in the ninth one more came across and it looked like a win.

The locals rallied in the ninth and put two across, winning out amid the wild cheering of the fans present. It was a fine game, from a local view, as a fielder used as pitcher and some of the second nine players were in the field. Home runs and fast fielding featured the game. Several double plays by the visitors kept the score down.

The pitchers were sluggers in this game, each getting three hits, two of Pinkston's being three flies each.

LaGrange Gets Game Over Anniston Club

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 10.—In the last game of the present series LaGrange defeated the Anniston club, thus making three straights. The game was a very slow and tiresome tone. The score was 9 to 5. Bannister and Donalson, of LaGrange, put one each over the fence, making home runs.

LaGrange goes to Anniston for three games, returning home for three games with Talladega.

Walkover Battle For Valdosta Team

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 10.—In a poorly played game on Brunswick's part, Valdosta won, 11 to 2. The locals made five runs in the first inning, enough to win the game. Gordon, for Valdosta, pitched a beautiful game.

Manager Morgan was put out of the park in the first inning for disputing the umpire's decisions. This incident marred the game and was regretted by the fans.

Sell Star Horses At Keene Sale

NEW YORK, July 10.—Colin and Peter Pan will be brought back to this country from England and France and sold at the disposal sale of the late James R. Keene's thoroughbreds this coming fall, it was announced here last night. These horses are the acknowledged heads of the great male line of Domino, the most successful horse in an American pedigree. Colin, with other horses in the Keene stables, was shipped to England in 1908 when racing suffered a decadence here following the passage of anti-betting laws. Peter Pan was sent to France.

Girl Catches Ball Fouled Into Stand

NEW YORK, July 10.—Annuciata Malafronta, thirteen years old, is the proud possessor of a real big league baseball, presented to her by Umpire Quigley, as a souvenir of the wonderful catch she made at the Brooklyn-Cincinnati game on Ebbetts field yesterday.

In the eighth inning Otto Miller whizzed a sizzling foul into the upper tier of the grandstand in the midst of 1,000 parochial school children. The girls screamed, but little Miss Malafronta put up her tiny pair of hands and coolly wrapped them around the ball as if it were only a bean bag.

Not even the sensational running one-hand catch made by Marsans, the Cuban outfielder, in the second inning, caused such applause as greeted the little girl's catch. She blushingly handed the ball to one of the ushers, but a minute later Umpire Quigley stepped from his place in the box and tossed a brand new baseball up into the stand for Miss Malafronta.

Player Quits Court in Tennis Battle

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 10.—In the third round of men's doubles in the Ohio-Kentucky bi-state tennis tournament here, Lewis R. Hardy, former southern champion, playing with R. C. Vaughan against Roland Hoerr, of St. Louis, and John Schaaf, of Cincinnati, refused to play at the end of the fourth-game game of the third set, and left the court. Each team had won a set and the score was seven all in the third. The event was awarded to Hoerr and Schaaf by default.

In the men's singles, John Schaaf, of Cincinnati, defeated F. Bishop, of New Orleans, 6-1, 6-2.

Waycross Bolsters; New Players Signed

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 10.—With several new players on hand for tryouts, the Waycross team, of the Empire, will within a week present almost an entirely new line-up. Manager Clark has been trying to get new men from several different parts of the country and through his efforts, has brought to Waycross some fine looking material. North Carolina has sent three men here, two of them pitchers, and a Maryland university man reported yesterday.

The start Waycross has made in the second half of the season has been rather disappointing to fans, but they are remaining loyal and expect to see the team pull out of last place and push right on to first before the season comes to an end.

PROFIT TAKING CAUSED THE DECLINE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 2 to 5 Points Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 10.—Private reports that numerous showers or local rains had occurred in Central Texas and Oklahoma, served to partially relieve recent new crop apprehensions, and the cotton market took a drastic slump during today's early trading. First prices were three points higher on July and August, but generally two points lower and the active months sold about 3 to 5 points net lower shortly after the call. Private advices attributed Liverpool's steady showing to short covering for over the holidays, as the markets will be closed there from today until Monday morning.

The market firmed up during the middle of the morning on the failure of the official forecast to suggest any immediate change in weather conditions and apprehension that continued drouth would cause crop deterioration before the August bureau report. Prices at midday were 3 to 5 points net higher.

Trading continued quiet during the early afternoon. Reports of high temperatures again today in the southwest and encouraging Balkan reports induced some profit taking and local bearishness by recent buyers held advances in check and caused slight reactions around 12 o'clock when prices were within a point or two of yesterday's closing.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 10.— Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 3 points down compared with the last quotations of yesterday. Tables were as good as due and dispatches concerning the Balkan situation were considered as highly unfavorable. Good rains were reported in Arkansas, where more moisture is needed, and thus the situational selling of the new crop months. The close was unchanged to 2 points net. The forecast of showery weather for the larger part of the belt was called bearish and was against the market. At the end of the first half hour of business most of the trading was between 6 points below and 2 points above.

The market reacted around the middle of the morning on reports that spot interests were buying futures, but no pronounced buying developed as considerable bearish comment was caused by the receipt of a letter from Texas of the new crop in Texas and by reports that more rains of new cotton would soon be coming into sight. Bulls pointed out that the 2nd of July was eight days later than last year's first bale. At the highest of the morning the trading months were 3 to 4 points over yesterday's final figures and at the close the market was quiet at a net advance of 1 point.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Around the opening there was some selling by ring speculators, but it was not pressing and prices were generally wanted from strong sources and a wave of short covering followed. Some of the buying was said to come from Wall street. Contracts were scarce, especially in October, and bulging it is said was based on fear of high temperatures in the southwest. Spot cotton and continued talk of boll weevil in Texas. Cables from Liverpool were rather bullish on the strength which was caused by short covering in fear of high temperatures over the Southern belt. Some of the larger spot interests were noticeable buyers of new crop. The south was not down as sellers, also reports of a good demand for the staple is narrow and is influenced easily either way just now. Inflation is the word and having a tendency to restrict business and no serious change in sight is looked for pending this legislation.—Anderson.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: The steadiness of yesterday's cotton market was explained in two widely divergent ways. The man who believes that the cotton crop is in good condition is of itself said that shorts experiencing difficulty in obtaining cotton supplies, and that short interest is still large enough to give trouble, and that the position of the actual bale, being a strong one, is responsible for reasons upward even when favorable weather would seem to be adding to bearish factors.

The man who believes artificial support is responsible for the market's continued show of strength said that talent and trade alike bought new crop deliveries yesterday, because in obtaining old months supplies, their short lines were beginning to put the screws on shorts, and that yesterday's trading in new crops will probably influence new crop deliveries to climb, temporarily, to higher levels.

Both of these opposing artists were much in evidence. One faction promised heat waves in July, and the other responsible for reasons upward records as proof that current temperatures are not abnormally high. Still another turned prophet and promised showers and that very soon, or in the west.

Yesterday very favorable; shows cloudy entire belt, except fair in southern half of Texas. Indications cooler in Oklahoma, Arkansas with fine rains in Arkansas, more or less showers some scattered showers elsewhere. Indications are for clear especially showers, cooler central belt.—Keller.

Houston, Tex. wires: First bale received by mail to Alford, Cameron county, south Texas, will be sold at auction today.

Forecast:

Louisiana—Tonight and Friday generally cloudy, somewhat unsettled; cooler tonight and Friday; light easterly winds on the coast.

Arkansas—Tonight and Friday unsettled, showers in east portion tonight or Friday, cooler tonight in northeast portion.

Oklahoma and West Texas—Tonight and Friday generally fair.

East Texas—Tonight and Friday generally fair; light variable winds on the coast.

Kentucky—Fair tonight and slightly warmer.

Tennessee—Fair tonight and Friday; warmer tonight or Friday; warmer Friday.

Mississippi—Fair tonight and Friday.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: January 11.56; July 12.41; August 12.17; October 11.54.

10 a. m. bids in New Orleans were: January 11.56; July 12.41; August 12.17; October 11.54.

McFadden brokers were buyers of new crop, figuring on a killing frost before normal time.

Liverpool cables market steady on covering on fear of the American advance on high temperatures over holidays.

Dallas wires: Texas: Panhandle and south clear; rest of state generally cloudy; temperature Oklahoma, north and west, clear; balance cloudy, cooler.

Official records for yesterday show temperature average 102 in Oklahoma and 100 in Texas, with six stations reporting 100; seven stations 102, seven stations 104 and one 106. Today's early records show it is cooler in Oklahoma.

Liverpool exchange will be closed tomorrow and Saturday on account of the holidays and the new Gladstone docks.

If the tax of 1 cent a pound per bale becomes a law the cost of hedging will fall upon the merchant and producer, probably the latter, but as a matter of fact it is doubtful if the merchant would be able to hedge at all in any market because the speculative interest would be is theoretically on the opposite side of the market. A cost of 12 points to trade would kill speculation on American exchanges and kill Liverpool operations between New York and Liverpool and the foreign market would merchants would not be large enough to take care of American business. Consequently a bale for a merchant to have a hedge order executed would be sold to a person another hedge order the other way. Any one familiar with the cotton trade knows that these orders would seldom meet, consequently the would not have all opportunity to hedge, such a situation would drive out all but the largest merchants, leaving the business in the hands of a few, which would have the southern producer in a merciless position.

The government figures of indicated crop, when properly analyzed, should be a comfort for those who are anticipating a poor crop year. The indicated crop is 14,000,000 bales, which with the same official indications July 1 last year, shows a promise for corn of 159,000,000 bushels greater than the crop year ago. Indicated wheat 125,000,000 more, while spring wheat promises 300,000,000 bushels more than the 1912 000,000 less. Total wheat promise is 72,000,000 more than forecasted at this date a year ago. To compare the July report with the July report of last year, it is necessary to figure on the basis of July 1 condition being multiplied until harvest. Such a comparison would indicate a crop of 15,185,000 bales, or 1,185,000 bales last year. A wheat crop of 731,000,000, against 730,000,000 last year, and oats 1,006,000, against 1,481,000 million last year. The corn figures are ago from last year's phenomenal crop is in oats and this accounts for the larger crop. On average for last five years, in addition there is a large crop of corn, wheat and oats.

General liquidation is on in oats and this, together with the promise of new oats from the country, will, in my opinion, carry the markets several cents lower.—Rycroft.

STOCK GOSSIP

New Jones summary:

Union Pacific directors scheduled to meet today when terms under which $88,000,000 Southern Pacific stock will be sold to them will be announced. United States Steel tonnage figures due at 3 p. m. today. President Shaughnessy, of Canadian Pacific, denies that additional steel issue is imminent. Tariff bill goes before Senate Friday. Northern Pacific will spend $10,000,000 6 per cent one-year notes.

Bank of England rate unchanged at 4½ per cent. American stocks in London heavy general. Up ¼ to ⅝ on London settlement. Bonds and commodities tomorrow. Twelve industrials declined 29. Twenty active rails declined .31. With ten exceptions all of the 50 railroad stocks corn crop, it looks as if the railroads would have all the business they can care for until winter. It looks as if President Wilson would avert railroad strike. Expect a trading market for the present, but prefer to buy stocks on breaks rather than sell on rallies.—Potter.

Vienna wires: Unofficial reports assert that the Bulgarian government is anxious to conclude peace at once and fighting may stop within 48 hours.

Advance in stocks due to short covering and a dispatch from St. Petersburg saying that Balkan war would soon end.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: Wheat traders were inclined to take a more optimistic report as bullish when considered in all its details. There were a number of sharp setbacks, however, who took a bearish view of it and talked lower prices. It was pointed out that the real final returns on all wheat will show around the same as last year, which with the early crop should mean a larger yield than last year. Corn specialists took the government report as bearish, basing their views on the fact of 1 per cent under last year. This was offset by the condition being the same as that of 1900. The crowd were regarded as short and the commission house holdings have been reduced of late. Cash interests were said to see the showing of the crop report, it being larger than expected, and that there was no strength to view of it and said that with the crop within sight of harvest, the market would look for a yield of 1,000,000,000 bushels.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat: The country continues to market the new crop of winter wheat very freely. As long as Europe continues to buy freely, the effect of the hedging operations is materially lessened. Now believe the bear side of the market is in control and are inclined to look for a fair rally.

Corn: This morning's map generally clear with some light showers reported in the northwest. The figures given in yesterday's government report have become much larger than the trade generally was looking for, but there has been a great deal of covering of shorts and also selling during the past few days. We are inclined to think the report will not prove a depressing influence.

Oats: Government report about as expected and therefore not a bearish factor. Country buying power is extremely limited but there has been a great deal of liquidation of late and we may gradually work lower we do not look for any sharp break at moment.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 10.—Liverpool came in at the close and quoted spots 5 higher; sales 8,000 bales. Cables indicate the market sustained by short covering before the holidays, no A. B. & L. bid 5@— points. The close indication of reports of higher temperatures. Liverpool will be closed tomorrow and Saturday, on account of the king of England's visit there. Houston reports receipts of the first bale of new cotton from Alford in Cameron county, Texas. This compares with July 1 last year. Weather forecast indicated that the start was soon brought up by the strength of July New York and also on some support in October, which position New York says will likely be affected by the very small stock there. It looks as if the intention is to advance the market. The big visible night for the week looks around 24,000 bales, against 25,253 last year. We compare with mill takings of 195,000 bales for this week last year.

Fat cows, unless she killers, and while the prices have ranged lower, the quality is considerably below that of the fresh grass cows. The demand for dairy cows has been light for the past several days, which together with the thin class of cattle has decreased the market and values are probably a full quarter lower on medium and a half lower on common and plain cows and heifers.

Tennessee sheep and lambs are plentiful and the extreme prices of a week ago have been lowered by about 1c per pound.

Hog receipts about equal to the demand. The yards are kept cleaned up from day to day. Several loads of extra choice packers were among the hogs received and brought top prices. Market steady.

NEW YORK STOCK LETTER.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The market responds well to favorable news and the general tone, outstanding short interest and the limited supply of stocks. Pessimism is giving way to real confidence. Bullish sentiment and confidence in corn crop of record-breaking proportions and the large volume of Balkan war are factors of the utmost importance. At least but not the present time. Rail prices is very low, the returns to the investors are entirely satisfactory and chances for a considerable appreciation in values in a reasonable time are good.—Gwathmey.

Saving and Investing

THE BOY SCOUT'S CREED.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

In the manual used by the Boy Scouts of America occurs this paragraph:

A scout is thrifty. He does not wantonly destroy property. He does not faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money, so that he may pay his own way. be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects."

When I read that paragraph it brought to mind a letter I had received from which the boy scouts got their name. It might have come from observation of the life of the old frontiersmen, except you'd have had to cut out the first four words in writing and the old fellows. They were not thrifty.

Here is a book written by one of the old scouts—a cheaply printed, abominally illustrated book, which was issued in 1900, and was written shortly before. It is the autobiography of Captain William F. Cody, known as Buffalo Bill. In 1852, who left his home in Kentucky at the age of fifteen to join Kit Carson, who spent thirty-one years on the plains and mountains of the west. "Chief of Scouts" the captain called himself, and his narrative shows how truly he won the title.

I read this book with absorbed interest—a simple, wonderful record of an adventurous life—until the very end. And there I found this:

"By this time I had spent and lost in speculation about all the money that I had earned from my property, and the outside property I owned I could not sell at any price. Since that time I have wandered around from pillar to post, with a little pack here and there, and at this writing am temporarily located at Moscow, Idaho."

There is my sixty-seven, ready near the end of the trail, swallowing the pride which forbade his seeking motorboat jobs as he phrased it, laboring in the fields of the world in the hope of getting a little money.

No, the old scouts were not thrifty.

"A CHILD and a fool" says Poor Richard,

"believe that twenty shillings and twenty years can never be spent." But the wise business man uses every open door to conserve that twenty shillings, and he finds that Journal Want Ads are a great help.

THE finding of an article of value leads immediately to the use of The Journal Wants.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG AND HIGHER

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Canadian Pacific, Lehigh Valley and Copper Led

NEW YORK, July 10.—Stocks were in better demand in the speculative today, and prices were higher. Business was principally in a few of the leading issues. The strength responded was Union Pacific, which rose 2 points on the day's transactions. Canadian Pacific also weak feature and rose 2 points. Steel, Southern Pacific and Reading gained a point.

Specialties presented early operations in stocks. Purchases were made with confidence, on the better completion of the speculative situation. Deprived of any immediate incentive to sell short, their sellers were eager to cover, and a considerable portion of the last upward move was Union Pacific, which rose 2 points on the day's transactions. Canadian Pacific also weak feature and rose 2 points. Steel, Southern Pacific and Reading gained a point.

Canadian Pacific also weak feature and rose 2 points. Steel, Southern Pacific and Reading gained a point.

The commencement rise of the market in the early trading bore out bulls' predictions that the short interest had been expanded considerably by recent selling, which made possible a succession of sharp upturns. The utterances of President Wilson's action to avert a strike of railroad engineers and conductors of eastern railroads, and Secretary McAdoo's statement that the government is for rent bonds would be protected in framing a currency bill, were primarily causes for the improved feeling. Bullish sentiment was further augmented by the Balkans were better and London bought stocks here, principally Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific. Record transactions were largely offaced by today's upturn. Canadian Pacific sold 5 points above yesterday's lowest, although the list fell back from the highest in the forenoon, trading became dull on the reaction and the major portion of the advance was retained.

Business became stagnant while the floor leaders were preparing a new impulse to active speculation. Scattered realizing just about balanced the new orders so that the market in the early afternoon moved within narrow limits. No interest was excited by the falling off in the net earnings of the corporation's unfilled orders of over 500,000 tons reported by the United States steel corporation as a considerable contraction in trade activities.

The Hartman stocks ran off over a point *each, presumably over rumors of selling by dis*appointed holders, who expected that fortune accruing from the dissolution of the $88,000,000 Union Pacific-Southern Pacific holdings of Southern Pacific would be disclosed at today's protested meeting of the directors. Later it became known that no quorum could be had the meeting postponed and developed in the Hartman shares, which affected the list.

New York Central declared a point on a Washington dispatch regarding the Interstate Commerce commission's investigation of the contemplated consolidation of New York Central and Lake Shore. Pressure developed in other sections of the list.

Bonds were irregular.

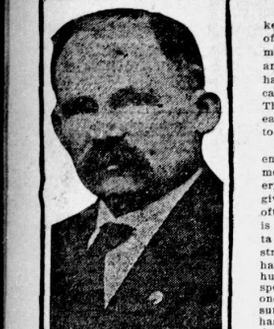
Raising Little Chickens During the Summer



THE best way to raise young chickens during the summer months is undoubtedly to keep them off of the ground out of the dew and dampness. I am more convinced of this than ever, and a great many late or summer hatched chickens die simply because they are given their liberty. The hens carry them out in the early morning dew which is fatal to the majority of them.

I am confident that little chickens can be raised during the summer, and in fact during most every month of the year if they are given a variety of green food, fed often, kept dry and clean. There is an instance right now in Atlanta that can be seen at 76 Crew street where Mr. D. L. Thomas has raised in his back yard several hundred little chickens practically speaking in small boxes, in fact, one coop above the other. It is surprising how many chickens he has raised in this small space and how rapidly they have grown, and the health they have maintained all along. It can be attributed to two things, first he understands how to feed; gives a variety and his chickens are always hungry, therefore healthy while they are fat, and are fed in sufficient quantities to keep them growing very fast.

These chickens are kept dry and clean; therefore, the loss is very small.

Until a chicken is fully feathered they seem to do better where kept confined and fed a variety rather than allow them their liberty. The loss is much smaller where they are kept under control and they grow equally as fast or even faster.

It is surprising how many chickens a person can raise in a small space if they will attend to the young chickens properly. The main secret in raising young chickens is in knowing how to feed them until they are a certain age. One has to be very careful if they raise a large per cent, but after they are feathered you can give them their liberty, and they should have it after this age so as to develop the form, bone and muscle which exercise alone will give them.

Thousands of chickens could be raised in the small lots on many city premises but it must be done by a person who likes it and loves to work with their fowls. No person who is neglectful should undertake this work, as they will not succeed.

Every year many new methods are learned connected with the poultry business and different things that we have never known come to light. This information can only be had by experience, and by keeping close data on results obtained by close observers. It is hard and constant work to raise chickens at the very best, and it is folly for a person to undertake to raise them on a large scale unless they are properly fitted until they are at least feathered.

Mr. Thomas, who has been so successful on this city lot, makes a specialty of fat plump broilers and fresh eggs, and can supply these in a small way at all times. He has a number of regular customers that he is supplying. He is surprising the number of grown and young chickens Mr. Thomas has raised on this city lot.

Yours very truly,

mation was wanted, and it was decided to hold another meeting on Friday or Saturday of this week.

The manufacturers want a building at a close-in location where they can carry a permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods and impress them on out-of-town buyers, who could get an idea of the various goods manufactured as well as facts about their prices without having to spend time going from concern to concern.

Brooks Morgan is chairman of the committee. He wouldn't say Thursday just which locations met the tentative favor of the committee.

AUCTION A SUCCESS.

Wednesday's auction sale by W. A. Vernoy of a house and lot and five lots at Park avenue and Bryan streets was an eminent success. The sale brought $7,295, the property costing the owners $4,900.

A good crowd attended, and Mr. Vernoy says he could have sold fifty more lots. The property was owned by John S. Owens and Gid Hannah. The following were the purchasers:

Lot 1, $775, by H. A. White; lot 2, $750, by H. A. White; lot 3, $875, by J. T. Wallace; lot 4, $1,200, by John A. ——tz; lot 5, $830, by Frank Whitley; house and lot, $2,650, by George B. Beauchamp.

ERROR IN LOCATION.

In the announcement Wednesday of the sale of a residence on Briarcliff road it was stated that the property was in Druid Hills. This was an error, as the property while in the same general section, was in another subdivision.

The Waldo & Redding agency, through Mr. Scott, has sold for the Peters Land company, to W. F. Dykes the southwest corner of Penn avenue and Fourth street, 50x150, for $3,500.

Mr. Dykes will build a $6,500 residence on the lot. Penn avenue has been passed up for paving, and a light system will be installed.

The Bottenfield agency, through J. F. Culpepper, has sold for W. A. Cook, of Senoia, to J. M. Langford No. 44 Plum street, a dwelling, for $2,200, and also a five-acre tract on the Mount Perrin road, near Pace's ferry road, for $875.

The same agency sold lot 6 of block 1 of the Chatrement Park subdivision, for $1,500; lot 9 of block 1 of the same subdivision, for $1,100; lot 22 of block E, $600; lot 16, block A, $1,500, and lot 9 of block C, for $1,600, all of the Peachtree Highlands subdivision.

R. W. Milner and J. D. Reeves have been added to the Bottenfield sales force.

COMPARISON OF BUSINESS.

The Fulton County Daily Report offers an interesting comparison of statistics between the twenty-seventh week of 1913 and the same week of 1912.

The value of real estate transfers—warranty deeds and bonds for title—is only about $2,000 les than last year. About $40,000 more was loaned, while there was about $70,000 worth of cancellations—or debts paid. Building permits alone fell off. The showing is encouraging and much better than most people have imagined. Following is the comparison.

1913.

Real Estate—Number 168; amount, $580,089.54.

Mortgage and Loan Deeds—Number, 75; amount, $164,661.41.

Cancellations—Number, 61; amount, $137,289.15.
